

Kennedy Decides Not To Seek Presidency In 1976

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the last surviving Kennedy brother, announced Monday he would not seek the presidency or vice presidency in 1976, saying that family responsibilities prevented him from running.

"I will not accept the nomination," said Kennedy. "I will not accept a draft. My primary responsibilities are at home."

Kennedy was often cited as the leading Democratic prospect for 1976, and several other potential candidates said his withdrawal threw the race wide open.

The Massachusetts Democrat said he had learned from his brothers John and Robert that a presidential campaign "demands a candidate's undivided attention and his deepest personal commitment."

He said at a Boston news conference that he could not make the full commitment necessary for a presidential campaign. "I simply cannot do that to my wife, children and other members of my family," he said.

Kennedy, 42, said the 1969 accident at Chappaquiddick Island was not a factor in his decision not to run, although he conceded the issue would have been raised if he sought the presidency.

Mary Jo Kopechne, a secretary who worked for Robert Kennedy, drowned when a car driven by Edward Kennedy ran off a bridge on Chappaquiddick Island off Cape Cod. Her death went unreported for several hours.

Kennedy's wife Joan, who was at his side during the news conference, has been in rest homes twice in recent months. His son, Edward Jr., lost part of a leg last November because of bone cancer.

John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, three years after his election to the presidency. Robert F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1968 while seeking the Democratic presidential nomination. Another Kennedy brother, Joseph, was killed during World War II.

Edward Kennedy, who said he would seek reelection to the Senate in 1976, said he had discussed the possibility of a presidential run with his relatives and announced the decision now "to ease the apprehensions of my family."

"My mother was extremely relieved," he said.

In response to questions about Chappaquiddick, Kennedy said: "This decision . . . would have been made irrespective of the tragedy that happened in 1969." But he added: "Were I to run it would have been a factor that would have been raised."

The senator said he had answered questions about Chappaquiddick "quickly, candidly and honestly" in the courts. "I can live with my own testimony," he said.

Kennedy said his decision not to run was "firm, final and unconditional. There is absolutely no circumstance or event that will alter the decision."

He said he would oppose any draft or effort to promote his candidacy.

Kennedy said that his withdrawal "will permit others who have been interested in gaining the nomination the chance for exposure during this campaign."

He said he did not want to list the top candidates remaining for the nomination. But he did name Sens. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas and Henry M. Jackson of Washington, as well as Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and "some other governors who have indicated their interest in the nomination."

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama "will of course be a factor," he said. Most party leaders believe Wallace is capable of amassing substantial numbers of delegates in 1976, but incapable of winning the nomination.

Udall said in Washington that Kennedy's withdrawal "really does open it up."

Jackson termed the race "wide open now" saying he would step up his planning, and Mondale said he expects governors, mayors, county commissioners and "sewer inspectors" getting into the race.

Doyle Denies Waste

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

State Engineer Thomas Doyle Monday denied charges that State Roads Department crews waste more than half of their time.

In a thick report to Sen. Richard Marvel's Appropriations Committee, Doyle said:

"A detailed investigation conducted by this office, involving all levels of management and our front-line maintenance employees, indicated to me that these charges are highly irresponsible, are without substantial foundation and simply are not supported by the facts in most instances."

Charges Levelled

During a committee hearing, Sept. 17, legislative fiscal staffers said road maintenance crews start work late, lack systematic work plan, are overstaffed and even sleep on the job.

Staffers estimated a 59% inefficiency factor and $6.4 million in wasted funds.

Doyle's rebuttal relied heavily on letters from the department's district engineers.

F. L. Davis, District 2 engineer, said, "I do not believe that . . . only 40 observations at a localized area and over a short period of time can possibly reflect a true picture of our overall maintenance program. I do not deny that we have time loss and room for improvement."

"I am sure that an accurate and properly conducted study will prove that we are more than 41% efficient," he said.

Another district engineer, D. J. Erington, called the efficiency estimate "ridiculous."

'Never Better'

District Engineer Dave Coolidge of McCook said, "Our highways have never been better maintained than they are today, and with fewer employees."

Doyle also attempted to answer many of the charges in a point-by-point fashion.

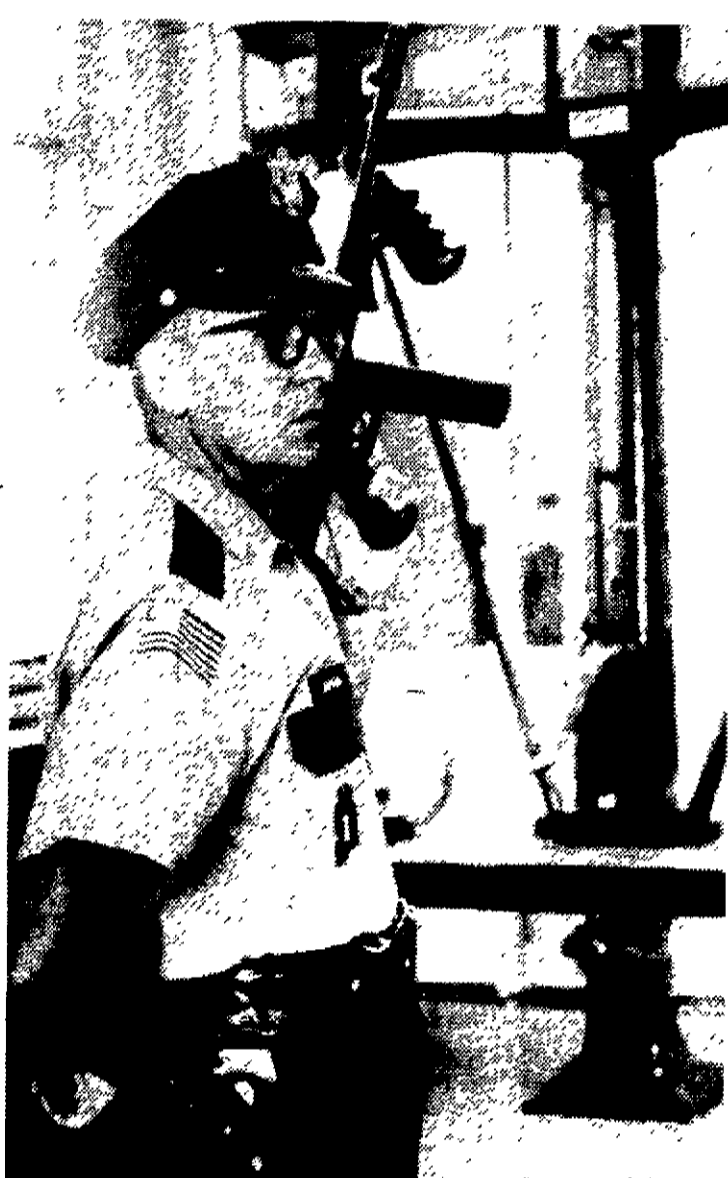

The accusation that the crews have no work schedule is "absolutely untrue."

"Even the most cursory examination would reveal that there is a detailed work plan followed in every case except where emergencies arise," he said.

Regarding charges the crews are overstaffed, Doyle said the department has 2,515 employees, 336 fewer than the department had in 1970.

Sleeping on the job, he said, is not tolerated, although isolated instances probably occur.

Doyle also said he has called for a meeting of district engineers, the state highway commission and members of the legislative staff to discuss the charges.

There Is Gold

By The New York Times

Ft. Knox, Ky. — The Treasury Department opened the U.S. Bullion Depository to visitors Monday for the first, and possibly last, time and let it all hang out — $22 billion worth of the stuff that dreams are made of.

Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the Mint, supervised the opening of a series of doors and vaults leading into the nation's gold sanctuary and said triumphantly on peering inside:

"There it is."

Even a professional pauper could not fail to be impressed. Stacked from floor to ceiling in one vault 8 feet high, 6 feet wide and 12 feet deep were 35,236 bars glistening in the half-light.

Awe Some

The effect of standing in the presence of about $1,775,688-776.85 worth of gold was truly awesome.

A chorus of "ohs" and "ahs" arose from the 10 congressmen who had stopped by to see whether, indeed, the gold was still there. In recent years there have been repeated rumors that some of the precious metal was missing.

Viewing the pile of 27.5-pound bars, only part of the enormous hoard, Rep. John H. Roussell, R-Calif., the John Birch Society member who had raised an eyebrow over the stories of missing gold, swept his eyes over the treasure and said, "I think it's there."

Sen. Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky., and the other congressmen who were craning their heads for a better look, agreed.

Mrs. Brooks, who was herself a bit goggle-eyed looking over her responsibility, said, "We've never done this before and we'll probably never do it again."

367,500 Bars

At the request of Congress, the General Accounting Office — the watchdog arm of Congress — is going to weigh all 367,500 bars to see if they add up to the 147.4 million fine troy ounces the Treasury says they do. The audit will take weeks.

Armed guards inside the building swept the visitors with metal detection devices, then shepherded them into the center of the deceptively unimpressive structure.

Mrs. Brooks then gave the order to open the door to the main vault.

With his body shielding his actions, Victor H. Harkin, officer in charge of the depository, twirled a dial on the combination lock, then stepped back. His assistant, Robert Yeater, then did the same thing. Neither knows the other's combination.

'Thunk'

A guard turned a handle and, after a loud "thunk," the three-foot thick door swung open. Inside was a rabbit warren of smaller rooms.

The 13 rooms containing gold are not locked, but each door has a seal that contains the signatures of the persons who verified the amount of gold inside when it was placed there.

An official ordered the door of a room opened, and there it was — about 500 tons of gold.

As impressive as it is, the Ft. Knox hoard is little more than half the nation's gold supply.

Oil Nations Warned

Kissinger, Ford Speak

By The Associated Press

President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told the Arab oil producing nations in separate speeches Monday that the world cannot and will not stand exorbitant or rigged oil prices. The two U.S. officials warned of global depression.

Ford, speaking at the opening session of the World Energy Conference in Detroit, told an audience that included Saudi Arabia's oil minister:

"Sovereign nations cannot allow their policies to be dictated, or their fate decided, by artificial rigging and distortion of world commodity markets. No one can foresee the extent of the damage nor the end of the disastrous consequences if nations refuse to share nature's gifts for the benefit of all mankind."

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, in another speech at the conference, said the oil exporting nations are jeopardizing their own economies by keeping petroleum prices at current high levels.

"The international investments of all nations are in jeopardy and the old fable of the goose that laid the golden egg can be seen developing in today's headlines and international cable traffic," said Simon, formerly the United States' top energy official.

Ford's speech marked the second time in a week that the President had blunt words for the Arab oil producers. He sounded a similar note in his address to the United Nations General Assembly last Wednesday, when he warned that manipulation of the energy crisis could lead to counteraction, using food as a political and economic weapon.

Kissinger followed up Ford's theme in his own Monday speech to the General Assembly.

"The high cost of oil is not the result of economic factors, of an actual shortage of capacity or of the free play of supply and demand," Kissinger said. "Rather it is caused by deliberate decisions to restrict production and maintain an artificial price level."

The secretary of state said that a world poised on the brink of general depression cannot afford the current petroleum prices, much less continuing increases. He said the poorer nations could be overwhelmed.

"It cannot be in the interest of any nation to magnify the despair of the least developed who are uniquely vulnerable to exorbitant prices and who have no recourse but to pay," Kissinger said.

Ford told the 3,500 delegates to the energy conference that "exorbitant prices can only distort the world economy, run the risk of worldwide depression and threaten the breakdown of world order and safety."

In a clear reference to last winter's Arab oil embargo, Ford said human suffering results "when nations use their resources as political weapons against others . . ."

Shiek Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's oil minister, addressed the conference during the afternoon session.

He told the delegates that the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), were an alliance unlike the ordinary commodities cartel.

Yamani said the major OPEC partners "do not make any sacrifices by curtailing their sales because the rewards of conservation in terms of future revenues are far greater than any immediate gain engendered by expansion of sales."

Price increases last year represented an overdue reaction to removal of a price lid held by the major oil companies, he said.

The solution to the world financial problems that resulted from those increases "will be largely contingent upon the cooperation of both developed and developing nations with the oil producing countries for creating a healthy environment for investment opportunities of surplus funds," he said.

Lincoln Bar Members Recall Good, Old Days

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Bar Association Monday night honored nine of its members, who together represent more than 450 years of service in the legal profession. The guests of honor have all been members of the local bar for 50 years or more.

William I. Aitken, a graduate of the University of Nebraska and Harvard Law College, said in an interview he has seen "major changes in the practice of law" during his 53 years in the legal profession.

"Extensive new social legislation has placed an entirely new burden on lawyers . . ." he said, referring to such regulatory acts as the Wage and Hour Law, the Fair Labor Standards Act, Social Security Act and the Equal Employment Opportunity Act.

Once Used Courts

"Fifty years ago, disputes in these areas would have been settled in courts." Today, he added, lawyers spend a great deal of time appearing before administrative agencies.

"I'm not complaining, I accept it," he said. "The result is that it requires more specialization on the part of lawyers . . . but after all, life is more complicated today than five years ago."

Hugo Srb, a 1924 graduate of the NU Law College, was a member of the old, partisan Bicameral Legislature, as well as clerk of the Unicameral Legislature from its inception in 1937 until he retired in 1969.

Srb said he thinks the Unicameral system is "one of the greatest things" ever devised.

Unicam Kept Promises

"The one-house Legislature achieved the promises its sponsors made for the first 20 years," Srb said. He described the Unicameral as "more efficient and more economical" than its predecessor.

"It took 20 years before the Unicameral cost as much money as the Bicameral," he said.

Recalling the "good old days," Srb said, if a member thought the session was dragging too far into May, he would stand up and shout "It's time to plant oats." "Then we could all go home," he said.

Change Would 'Kill'

Srb, who still keeps abreast of Unicameral activities, said he thinks becoming partisan would "kill" the Unicameral system. "I would do all I could to stop it," he said.

Edward F. Carter, retired member of the Nebraska Supreme Court, was a member of the NU College of Law's 1919 graduating class.

Carter stepped down in 1971 after a record-setting 36 consecutive years on the Supreme Court bench.

The judge declined to single out opinions from the years past of which he takes particular pride.

"There were many," he said, simply.

Fewer Trials Today

Carter said he has seen "an awful lot of changes" in the legal profession, noting that more trials were conducted in years past than today.

"Lawyers generally settle more things in their offices than they used to," he said. "People are kind of willing to compromise and get things settled."

U.S. District Judge Robert Van Pelt agreed, saying, "There are many less cases being tried now than before."

He said he thinks it's partly due to attorneys' fees and a changing economy.

More Auto Cases

Today, Van Pelt said, he notices more automobile and personal injury cases being tried.

"I expect one of the major changes is that they're trying to do away with technicalities," he added. As a result, "more matters are decided on their merits rather than on technicalities."

A native of Stockville, Van Pelt was graduated cum laude from Doane College in 1920 and received his law degree from NU in 1922.

Earl M. Cline, a semiretired attorney, has practiced in Lincoln since 1922. He received his law degree from the University of Michigan and was admitted to the bar in 1917.

Cline said his main observation on changes in the legal profession is that "today, everything is tied up with taxes. 'Fifty years ago we didn't have that,' he said. 'Today we do, and I guess it's all right.'"

Religious, Community Leader

Louis B. Finklestein, a religious as well as a community leader, was one of about 35 who was graduated from the NU Law College in 1922.

"The new lawyers coming out of law schools today are much better trained than we were in those early years," he said.

"There were usually no women, although one class had a part-time female student. Now, I understand there are many."

Other members of the Lincoln Bar recognized Monday include attorney B. Frank Watson, who has practiced in Lincoln since 1924; George H. Turner, long-time clerk of the Nebraska Supreme Court and an NU Law School graduate, and Bryan L. Littell, an NU graduate who was admitted to the bar in 1922.

Meow! Owners May Go Through Woof

Proposed increases in pet license fees may add to the howls of animal lovers at next week's Lincoln City Council meeting.

City lawmakers Monday voted to give both first and second readings and hold a public hearing next week on a proposed ordinance which would increase license fees for dogs and cats.

A one-dollar hike in the fees has been proposed with dog licenses being increased to $5 and cat licenses to $2.50.

Citations For Dogs

Already scheduled for public hearing next week is an ordinance introduced Monday which involves the issuance of police citations for certain alleged dog violations.

Under the ordinance, introduced by Councilman Max Denney, the Lincoln Police Department will be authorized to issue citations for violations of the licensing law, the leash law, or the barking and howling law.

The officer would need to verify only the dog's ownership and then issue a citation to the owner.

Zone Change Opposed

In other business, the Cathedral of the Risen Christ challenged a proposed change of zone from B Two-Family to A-2 Single Family in the vicinity of 33rd St. and Sheridan Blvd., requested by Planning Director Douglas Brogden.

Attorney Robert Crosby told the council that the change of zone seems "unfair" in that it would "decrease the value of the property and limit the use to which the church can put the property."

He said since the church bought the property there has been no change in the area, and a check on Sheridan Blvd., revealed five duplexes in the area.

The church contends that plans call for construction of a convent on the land to house nuns who teach in the cathedral school.

Brogden has pointed out that the church could obtain a special permit to build the convent even if the land is rezoned.

Irrigated Corn Reported In Mostly Good Condition

By United Press International
Irrigated corn is reported in mostly good condition across the state but some irrigated fields that would yield well below average will be harvested as silage, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said Monday in its weekly report.

Dryland corn was described as poor to fair. Some farmers are pasturing the crop but some still plan to harvest a grain crop.

About 95% of both irrigated and non-irrigated corn is in or past the dent stage, close to normal. The division said more than 50% of the crop is mature, compared with 72% in normal years.

Some fields are being harvested but moisture content is still running high.

The milo harvest has started in many areas. In some cases poor milo was cut as forage.

The division said nearly 80% of the crop has turned, compared to the normal of 98% on this date.

Warm, dry weather is needed for the crop to mature, the division noted.

Other division comments:
—Soybean condition improved slightly over the previous week in most parts of the state.

—Wheat seeding is continuing and more than 55% has been seeded. This compares with the normal rate of 70% at this time of the year. Seeding in the Panhandle is close to 90% finished.

—The alfalfa condition declined slightly during the past week.

—The dry edible bean harvest was in full swing last week with yields and quality reported to be excellent.

—Sugar beet condition is excellent and the harvest is expected to begin about Oct. 1.

—Range and pasture feed supplies are short in most counties, and hay is in short supply in some local areas.

Rainfall received throughout the state during the past week included:

Moisture received via sections since the beginning of the growing season, April 1, as compared to longtime averages follows:

Nebraska Loan Allotment Is $87 Million

Nebraska has received a guarantee allotment of $87 million for the special emergency livestock loan program, according to K.L. Bowen, state director of the Farmers Home Administration.

Bowen explained the new law permits the agency to guarantee up to 80% of losses on loans made by private lending institutions to bonafide farmers and ranchers primarily and directly engaged in breeding, raising, fattening or marketing their own beef or dairy cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, chickens or turkeys.

Bowen stated that if the loan is made to a corporation or partnership, the borrower itself and the partners or stockholders holding a majority interest in the corporation or partnership must be primarily and directly engaged in livestock operation.

Chinese Visitors Discussing Wheat

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Wheat production was the major topic Monday as a delegation of agricultural scientists from the People's Republic of China visited the University of Nebraska.

The Chinese will move on to Sidney Tuesday to visit NU's High Plains Agricultural Laboratory.

The delegation met with newsmen at a coffee break for informal pictures, but declined to answer questions.

Monday's schedule included a series of question and answer sessions with NU agricultural scientists on such topics as soil fertility research, wheat breeding, wheat disease control, wheat cytogenetics research and wheat quality research.

Wide Ranging Tour

The four-week tour of the United States has included visits to Maryland, Mississippi, Texas, Minnesota, Illinois and Iowa.

Later trips will take the delegation to California and Washington.

This is the third of several scholarly delegations to visit the U.S. this year as a result of exchange agreements reached in China last May between the Committee on Scholarly Communication with the People's Republic of China (CSCPRC) and the Chinese Scientific and Technical Association.

The CSCPRC is jointly sponsored by the American Council of Learned Societies, the National Academy of Sciences and the Social Science Research Council.

Other Delegations

During 1973, the committee hosted Chinese delegations in the fields of hydro-technology, high energy physics, insect hormone research, computer science, English language studies, library science and medicine.

Previous visits in 1974 have included seismologists and laser scientists.

Plant photosynthesis and pharmacology groups will follow.

A plant studies delegation from the U.S. is currently touring China.

The Chinese agricultural scientists are studying cotton, corn, wheat, sorghum and soybean breeding, seed production and crop production in the U.S.

Its chairman, Professor Yu Chi-pao, is a member of the board of directors of the Chinese Society of Agronomy and deputy director of the Shensi Province Academy of Agricultural and Forestry Sciences.

Opportunity For A New Era

Sen. Edward Kennedy could have played games with the Democratic Party and its horde of presidential hopefuls but to his credit he didn't.

From every angle, Kennedy's irrevocable decision to take himself out of contention for the 1976 presidential nomination made sense. His son is stricken with cancer, his wife is suffering from mental exhaustion and the rest of his family, including the children of his dead brothers of whom he is guardian, could only have anguished over what tragedy the future might bring.

The specter of another assassination weighed heavily on his mind, moreover, perhaps than the specter of Chappaquiddick, which might have brought him down if a bullet did not.

Most agree that Kennedy could have had the Democratic nomination for the asking, but it was with growing apprehension that many Democrats were beginning to view the possibility that the unanswered questions about Chappaquiddick would spell defeat for a national ticket headed by Kennedy. The senior senator from Massachusetts might have gambled that he could win even with the Kopechne tragedy in his past had other conditions been different, but with family responsibility acting as an additional restraint, he chose the wiser course.

The early announcement of his decision was well-timed. He chose to act now, as he noted, both for the sake of his family, to set them at ease, and his party, to clear the path for other contenders. Had he remained ambiguous about his intentions, other Democrats interested in the presidency would have been caught short in organizing and raising funds.

His personal life aside, Kennedy better than any other national party figure represents the mainstream of Democratic thought. As a powerful and effective legislator, his party's most effective fundraiser and most compelling spokesman, Kennedy will remain a force to be reckoned with on the national political scene for years to come.

His opting out of the 1976 action at this time, however, gives the Democratic Party an opportunity to produce a new generation of leaders, if only it will be used.

Inspecting The Closet

Congressional curiosity about the influence of the Rockefeller millions — or billions — and whether conflicts of interest exist which would compromise the vice president-designate may seem like carping to some people.

Surely it seems that a man of such wealth is not in public service for the money and the long record of his service seems unassailable from any quarter.

But the recent national experience demands that the family closet be inspected for skeletons. Beyond philanthropy and fortune-building how was the money used? And behind the illustrious record, were any deals made?

The hypocrisy, dishonesty and lack of candor on the part of many politicians in recent years have made doubters of the American people.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that in Florida after a cataract operation they sew the contact lens right in the eye. If the eye doesn't reject it, it is a blessing. Of course I realize everyone wouldn't go for this, but I would. If this is true, are there any doctors in Chicago who perform this type of operation? — E. E.

Dear Doctor: My husband had an operation for a cataract four years ago and is wearing a contact lens. Everything is okay. Now the other eye needs to be done and the same ophthalmologist suggested this time that he insert a certain thing into the eye so he will not need glasses or contact lenses. It stays permanently in the eye. I do not know the name of it. It can be done only while he performs the operation. I would appreciate your opinion or any suggestions. My husband is 68. — Mrs. I.C.

This "thing" is called an intraocular clip lens.

Removal of a cataract means, of course, that the cloudy lens of the eye is removed. Then glasses or contacts — that is, a lens to substitute for the natural lens that has been removed — is necessary to focus light rays into a clear image on the retina of the eye.

The intraocular clip lens is aimed, of course, at providing this new lens right at the time of surgery instead of waiting for the eye to heal first, and then fitting a lens.

I believe the procedure is being done in most major medical centers which of course would include Chicago along with others.

I do not, however, as yet have any information on what complications may be involved, but usually it takes some time with any such new technique to learn what special precautions may be necessary, what pitfalls there may be, what advantages there are.

Being a conservative type, I'm inclined to bide my time on adopting new techniques, if — and this is a big if — there are methods already available that are satisfactory. Thus in the case of Mrs. I. C.'s husband, the conventional surgery and then a contact lens has worked out well. Why not stick to the method he has found satisfactory?

As I said, I'm conservative about such things. Although I also must admit that if there aren't some adventurous souls who want to try the new things, or new methods, where would we gain the experience to find out whether the new is really better than the old?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the difference between a cyst and a tumor? — H. G.

A cyst is a sac which contains fluid or some semi-solid substance. A tumor is an unwarranted growth of cells that serves no useful purpose. The cyst is usually movable, and the tumor, since it is usually embedded in the surrounding tissue, is not. Thus, the cyst is much easier to remove surgically than is the tumor, which must be cut away from surrounding tissue.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read about a person that had glaucoma and was told that coffee and tea were stimulants and could raise the eye pressure. I am blind in one eye (since birth) and drink six to ten cups of coffee a day and am concerned about it. — Mrs. J. A.

But do you have glaucoma? If you do, don't overdo the coffee and have whatever other treatment your doctor prescribes. If you don't have glaucoma, then there is no problem except that generally 10 cups of coffee is excessive. If you don't know whether you have glaucoma, then I suggest, particularly since you have only one eye, that you be tested for glaucoma to be safe.

Dear Doctor: If a woman had a series of rabies shots when she was young, does that mean she can never become pregnant? — Ms. G. A.

No. Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have read about cigarette smoking speeding up the heart beat. I have a slow heart with a pulse of 36 at times. Would cigarettes help me? — Mrs. M. M.

No, they wouldn't. But you ought to have an electrocardiogram to determine the nature of the slow beat.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How does a person select a plastic surgeon in order to get a face lift? Are they classified according to ability, and how can you be confident of their ability to perform as well as another one? — Mrs. A. R.

It is best to have a direct referral from your personal physician, who undoubtedly has knowledge of the medical community. He would refer you to the proper doctor.

Otherwise, contact your county medical society which will provide a list of qualified plastic surgeons in the area.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About 10 years ago the doctor found my husband had emphysema and should quit smoking. Sometime later a specialist found he had angina. He quit smoking for 10 years and felt good and looked good. A short time ago he started to smoke again. He has lost weight and has a peculiar cough, especially at night. I am very concerned and would like you to explain the effect of smoking on a person with this condition. — Mrs. D.S.

Why should I explain, when you are seeing what happens right before your eyes? The angina and emphysema complicate each other. No emphysema patient should smoke — and I am astonished and saddened that your husband can't understand it.

ANTHONY LEWIS

NEW YORK — The disclosures of covert C.I.A. operations in Chile raise questions on two distinct levels: Was the particular activity against the Allende government justified? In general, is it wise for the United States to intervene surreptitiously in the internal politics of other countries?

Covert action by the C.I.A. has caused so much embarrassment to this country in recent years that only a serious threat to U.S. national security could begin to justify it. In those terms, putting aside all concern about American values and international proprieties, the intervention in Chile was plainly a mistake.

The Allende government, whatever its faults, did not threaten anything of ours except the property of American businesses — which it had support from all Chilean parties in expropriating. Moreover, economic disaster was overtaking Allende in any case. By becoming involved directly with the elements that brought him down, the United States unnecessarily made itself accessory to a bloody coup and a particularly cruel repression thereafter.

The argument offered by Secretary Kissinger for the operations in Chile must set some kind of record in cynical contempt for his listeners' intelligence. It is that the C.I.A. was only defending freedom by giving money to the opposition press and parties.

There is no evidence that Kissinger has ever shed a tear for freedom of the press — or done anything about the brutal repression of freedoms by a dozen right-wing tyrannies. The image Kissinger has given this country is that of a friend to the Greek colonels. Now he is advising President Ford to visit South Korea, where the feeblest criticism of government may bring a death sentence.

Chile itself is a complete answer to the notion that our interest in intervening was liberty. The military regime that rules it now is one of the most repulsive governments in the world. A recent report by the International Commission of Jurists, confirming other studies, said torture was in substantial use, including "electric shock, burning with acid or cigarettes, extraction of nails, crushing of testicles, sexual assaults, hanging . . ." That is the regime that the U.S. rushed to support, after the coup, by resuming various forms of aid.

The argument that we were only protecting the opposition press and parties in Chile is also unpersuasive because it is untrue. As Seymour M. Hersh of the New York Times has brought out, most of the millions spent by the C.I.A. in 1972 and 1973 went for support of striking truckers, shopkeepers and others whose activities played a significant part in bringing Allende down.

Official lies are a problem of covert activity in general. They inevitably become necessary. And then, again and again in this country, they are exposed, adding to the weight of public disbelief that has increasingly burdened American policy-makers.

Concern about the credibility of U.S. foreign policy is one strong reason for giving up the practice of covert C.I.A. operations. This case was made definitively just a year ago, in the magazine foreign affairs, by Nicholas Deb. Katzenbach, former undersecretary of state and attorney general.

"Our foreign policy must be based on policy and factual premises which are accepted by the overwhelming majority of the American people," Katzenbach wrote. As one step toward re-establishing credibility, he said, "We should abandon publicly all covert operations designed to influence political results in foreign countries. We should confine our covert activities overseas to the gathering of intelligence information."

Katzenbach was not making a moral, but a pragmatic argument — that American covert operations were harming us more than others. Even the current C.I.A. director, William E. Colby, recently took a very limited view of their utility, saying that it was "legitimate" to consider abandoning them and that there would be no great impact on our security.

But there are questions of values, too. Does the United States want to proclaim to the world that covert political intervention abroad is a regular part of our national philosophy? President Ford came close to doing so, the other day, when he said that everyone does it — only the communists spend more than we do. Are we really no different? We may not always live up to what we say, but do we want to set our standards so low?

Those like Kissinger who say that morality must give way to effectiveness in these matters really favor covert operations — and secrecy in general — because they are more convenient. It is easier to have a confidential chat with Bill Fulbright or John Stennis than to justify a policy in public. But in the long-run, it is more dangerous. The habit of dirty tricks abroad can slip into corrupting illegality at home. That, at least, we should have learned from Watergate.

Cloak And Dagger

TOM WICKER

Mr. Nixon's Health

NEW YORK — The trial of the Watergate defendants is scheduled to begin on Oct. 1. Richard Nixon entered a hospital in California on Sept. 23, for tests and treatment in connection with his case of phlebitis. That makes it pretty obvious that Nixon does not intend to appear as a witness in the trial, at least not in its early stages, although he has been subpoenaed by defense and prosecution.

It is tempting to regard this as another dodge in Nixon's long scramble to avoid any responsibility for the criminal acts alleged against his administration. So it is tempting also to concur with Special Prosecutor Jaworski that Judge John J. Sirica send out his own team of physicians to San Clemente to determine whether Nixon really is too ill to appear.

The better course would be for Nixon's physicians to issue a definitive statement, as soon as possible, on his condition and his ability to testify. If in their professional judgment he cannot, Judge Sirica should delay the Watergate trial in fairness to the defendants, the nation and Nixon himself.

For the court to obtain its own medical examination of Nixon runs the risk of having one set of doctors say he is able to testify, and another say he is not. Would Judge Sirica then be prepared to drag Nixon into court over the protests of the Nixon doctors?

No one could wish for that. Nixon's doctors, if not Nixon himself, should quickly settle the matter by describing his physical condition publicly and fully. If that forces a trial delay, the skies will not fall.

What is far more important is that the seven defendants get a fair trial, and that the nation get the fullest possible airing of the Watergate story and other "White House horrors." Both purposes clearly require Nixon's testimony. The pardon already issued him by President Ford grants him immunity from further federal prosecution. State prosecution seems highly unlikely.

Given these circumstances, no great harm will be done by delaying the trial, if Nixon's health makes it necessary. The defendants, moreover, are claiming already that pre-trial

JACK ANDERSON

The Cruellest Cut

WASHINGTON — Two-year-old Torrey Anderson, son of an Air Force sergeant, couldn't walk or talk but remained usually in a fetal position, staring at the floor.

The diagnosis: He had a severe mental disorder professionally called autism; he also had a neurological disease that made one leg smaller than the other.

But after a year at San Francisco's Burt mental health center, the little fellow was walking, talking and going home on weekends. His leg also showed no trace of the neurological disease.

Other children like Torrey, however, may not be so fortunate because the Defense Department is cutting back medical assistance for military dependents. Among other "savings," a Pentagon memo decreed that expenditures for "treatment for a mental or emotional disorder" would be slashed.

Yet military children are more susceptible to emotional disturbance than average children because of the constant moving and the father's absence from home.

Specifically, the new cutbacks would limit the stay of military dependents in treatment centers to no more than 120 days. Few children with serious emotional disturbances or mental disorders, according to the National Institute of Mental Health, can be treated successfully in 120 days.

A Pentagon spokesman promised that children with severe cases of autism would not be affected by the limitations. But my reporter Chris Nordlinger found that treatment centers haven't been notified of this exception.

Suggestion: The money to care for the Torrey Andersons could be made available by cutting back instead on the limousines, helicopters and airplanes that are provided for the convenience of the brass hats.

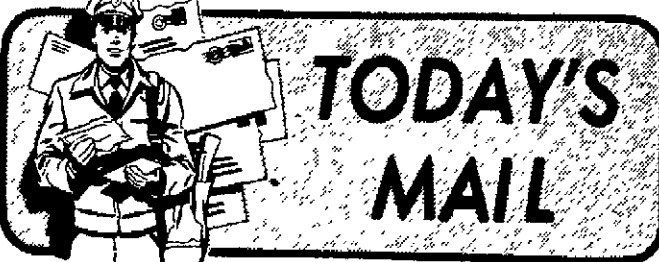

President Ford has announced his first priority is fighting inflation. His second priority, unannounced, is reducing the crime rate.

President Ford has sent word to Moscow that he will take a "personal interest" in promoting Russian-American trade.

The President has promised to "tighten up the availability of income tax returns" to stop Watergate-era snooping into the taxpayers' records. But Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., in a private memo for his colleagues, calls the White House bill a "right to rummage" measure. It would permit massive snooping, he insists.

The real reason President Ford was in such a hurry to get the Nixon tapes and papers out of the White House was to escape involvement in the Watergate trials. He feared the courts would keep his staff tied up sorting through the former President's 44 million papers and listening to his 900 tapes.

Approves Of Miss America

Ansley, Neb. In answer to "Citizens for Sane Drug Laws," (Star, Sept. 14), about Miss Cochran, our 1975 Miss America — I would like to say, "Praise The Lord" for people like her who will stand up and say, "I am a Christian and I do not defile my body with drugs." After all, our bodies become the temple of the Holy Spirit when we receive Christ into our hearts and we should keep our bodies clean and be undefiled before God, as the Bible tells us.

If there are Christians who say they are Christians and use drugs and alcohol, they are deceiving only themselves about their Christianity. That is what is the matter with Christianity today. Too many people are saying but not living the true, clean body, mind and spirit of Christianity.

Newspapers never show pictures of the results of these body and mind-killers, nor is it ever mentioned how much of the taxpayers' money is having to be spent to care for their addicts.

Maybe I am ignorant but I say — down with drugs and alcoholic beverages — and up with true, God-fearing, clean-living Christianity

ZELMA BRISTOL

The Real Reasons

Lincoln, Neb. One cannot help but be amused and enlightened by The Star's background article on Jean O'Hara, the new executive director of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women. At the very beginning of the article before mentioning Mrs. O'Hara's credentials, accomplishments and expectations, The Star provided her administrative "legitimacy" by mentioning her husband's occupational position.

The Star could not have provided a better illustration of what determines "the status of women" in our society

B. S.

Editor's Note: Jean O'Hara's name and occupation were listed for two reasons:

(1) The normal procedure for news stories introducing a new professional to the community includes listing the spouse and his or her occupation, plus the number of children.

(2) With no mention of her husband, readers might assume that Ms. O'Hara is the wife of Paul O'Hara, executive director of the Nebraska Catholic Conference. Jean O'Hara and Paul O'Hara have in the past and could in the future be testifying and lobbying on the opposite sides of legislative issues.

The Special Interests

Pious Dyas's statements about contributions from "special interests" are incongruous, to say the least.

Our very competent Congressman Charles Thone practices what his opponent preaches. Mr. Thone has kept his resolution to take no contributions from the special interests and none higher than $100 from anyone.

What about his opponent? Read the list from his financial report. I don't need the Ladies Garment Workers in New York nor the machinists in Washington, D.C., nor the Railway Clerks in Rosemont, Illinois, and especially not the transportation employees in Cleveland, Ohio, to tell me how to vote.

We Welcome FOOD STAMP SHOPPERS

"Ah, love, love! When thou seizest us
"We may well say goodbye prudence!"
That is the way poets feel about Love. How about painters? Pablo Picasso was 80 plus — you can't call that immature. When he said, "Love is the most important thing in life."
"The most important step in life is marriage," said John Lubbock. (Who was John? He's in the anthologies, very big.) John then went on — "Love seems to beautify and inspire all nature. It raises the earthly caterpillar into the ethereal butterfly; paints the feathers in spring, and lights the glowworms' lamps; it awakens the song of birds, and inspires the poets' lay."
The Future Homemakers of America keep an eye on marriage. And other things that go with a scatter with a fringe of mortgage on top.

"Love ranks fourth among the ingredients for a successful marriage," they reported.
The Future Homemakers are young muffins. Unmarried (that's the future). But with plenty of confidence. So to the altar, dear hearts, with Love running out of the money.
How did they come to this stern conclusion? "Interviews were held with 360 young married couples," said the reporting committee.
"Similar religious background would seem to be the No. 1 factor in a successful marriage."
"A completed education is second. And third, each partner should have sufficient maturity for marriage."

And after that, luv, comes love.
Love has been analyzed by Science — the FH of A could look into that.
They find it three parts tenderness and one part aggression. (About the proportions of a not-to-dry martini.)
For every three kisses, one grump. ("Lamb chops again?")
For every three floury hugs, one sniff. ("You never take me out to dinner!")
That's what makes the world go round, says science. (I wonder if the scientist dies the three-to-one around his house? Smack, smack, smack — whack!)
Well that's the news. The committee did not report whether these 360 couples were successfully married. Or whether they were merely giving their ideas. Their theories of what makes marriage a success. Maybe these couples were highly unsuccessful. Just throwing each other up for verbal grabs.

What is interesting is that the 360, plus the Future Homemakers, are taking it for granted that marriage should be a success. This itself doesn't speak for much maturity. (Well, experience then.)
People who have a little mileage on the marriage (If they level with you) can tell you it's hard enough staying in business. Never mind success.

Never mind "sufficient maturity" of "religious background."
Just step it off, day by day, Claude. And don't walk on anybody's feet but your own. Love helps a little, too.

Life Begins At 40:

Woman Enjoys Role Of Town Eccentric

By ROBERT PETERSON
A few weeks ago this column commented on those who grow old disagreeably. A woman writes, "If we want to grow old disagreeably, why not? I've just passed my 75th birthday and for the first time in my life have shrugged off all affectations and false pretenses. Oh, what a relief to drop the humbug and dress as I please, and say what I think of a string of controversial topics from abortion to Martha Mitchell."
"Don't worry, I'm no menace to society. In fact, I may turn out to be an asset for there's so much hypocrisy floating around we need to be steered back to truth and reality. I'm acting myself without any restraints, and rumor has it I'm not only twice as interesting a person as before, but the first authentic eccentric this town has had in the past 80 years."
A score of years ago few people had heard the words geriatrics or gerontology. But these are fast-moving times and nearly everyone today in all circles knows that these words refer to older people and the aging process.

Many colleges and universities now offer courses in gerontology. Several offer M.A. and Ph. D. degrees in gerontology. And thousands of young men and women have embarked on careers as specialists in this optimistic new and exciting field of aging and retirement.
Things are still far from perfect for elders in America. Many older people have an ailment or two, could use more money, and lack stimulating social contacts. But before complaining too loudly perhaps we should ponder a statement by Sir Charles P. Snow, British author and scientist who has spent much time in India.
Writes Snow, "The elderly in the United States, England, and most of Europe are preposterously lucky. The mere fact that they have sufficient food and shelter puts them ahead of millions of their contemporaries in the Far East. In places such as Calcutta and Bombay there's no major problem of caring for the aged because most of them are dead."

Bridge Hand 'Is Different'

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — Beneath those look-alike hard hats, all bridge gang workers aren't in fact the same. One big difference in Sandi Edwards is that "I'm the one with short hair."

The pixie-like blonde, 20, is indeed surrounded by male co-workers whose locks fall upon their broad shoulders. Even so, she charitably speaks of them as "my equals."

An avowed women's libber, the 5-foot-4 miss was brassy enough to ask for a job helping redeck the Big Blue River's Court Street bridge. Surprise — she found the project superintendent, K. B. Roberts, willing to hire.

Same Work, Same Wage

So her 110 pounds have been pitted against "most all there is to do" on a bridge job. For the same $3 per hour paid other Beatrice Construction Co. laborers, she is loading and driving trucks, tying steel and handling an awesome jackhammer.

"That hammer is a bruiser, but I've used both the 35- and 85-pounders," said the BHS graduate. "But even that hard work doesn't demean like being a waitress, where a girl is just a sex object."

Besides table-waiting, Sandi also had a stint as a service station attendant. Then came a two-year hitch in the Army, mostly as a radio operator at Fort Gordon, Ga.

Tried Auto Mechanics

She also had a go at auto mechanics at Southeast Community College at Milford, but quit after two quarters.

Bits of femininity have shown through during her month with the bridge gang. Between the more muscular endeavors, she has been placed in charge of first aid and making the crew's coffee.

"She's my left hand and a good one," complimented Roberts, a veteran in construction. "She's this company's first gal, but through the years I've personally had women crane operators and dozer drivers and everything. They were a hell of a lot better than some of the men."

SANDI...can handle harassment.

Last Rites Held For Teenagers; Officials Continue Investigation

Guide Rock (AP) — Funeral Services were held Sunday and Monday for two Guide Rock teenagers who were graduated from high school here a year apart.

Services for Jeff Vogler, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vogler, were held Sunday. Services for Marcia Gilbert, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gilbert, were held Monday.

The Gilbert girl had been missing since early last Sunday morning, when she told her parents that she was going to drive two persons home following a party.

Marcia's fully-clothed body was found Friday afternoon in a ditch along a Webster County road about eight miles southeast of Red Cloud.

A Webster County coroner's inquest ruled Saturday that the apparent cause of the Gilbert girl's death was a fractured skull, and that the wound was inflicted by "a large, heavy, unidentified object," according to County Atty. Jerry McDole.

McDole said the inquest ruled that the time of death was after 3:30 a.m., Sept. 15.

"It would appear from the evidence death was caused by person or persons unknown, and that the evidence would rule out an accident or suicide," McDole added.

McDole said a full autopsy report would not be forthcoming for several days, possibly a week.

Vogler died Thursday in his Lincoln apartment, the victim of an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound. However, investigators have not yet determined whether the Vogler death was an accident or a case of duicide.

Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas said Vogler's wife found Jeff's body early Thursday evening, and that there was no suicide note.

Webster County Sheriff Ed Wiggins said a link between the two deaths is being probed because Vogler is believed to have been the last person to see the Gilbert girl alive.

Name Sought For School By Ed Board

"Southwood School."

That might be an appropriate name for the $1.5 million elementary school under construction in Lincoln's Southwood Addition on Tipperary Trail.

But a Lincoln Board of Education committee wants to give everyone in the community a chance to offer suggestions before making a decision.

The 52,000-square-foot building is scheduled for completion in late 1975.

Suggestions for names and background information on them should be submitted to Joe Rowson, publications and information administrative assistant, at the Public Schools Administration Building, 720 S. 22nd.

Committee members may also be contacted. They are: Board members Williamette Shafer and Louis Roper, Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Carroll Sawin, Mrs. Joseph Badami and Mrs. Verne Dvorak.

Legality Of School Aid Bill Vote Debated

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

An attorney for the Nebraska State School Boards Association (NSSBA) said Monday if voters are allowed to repeal the state aid to education bill in the November referendum, that will "void completely the Legislature's obligation to provide a free education" to children in Nebraska.

The attorney, L. Bruce Wright, also submitted that repeal of the bill, LB772, will "impair the constitutional mandate which specifically requires the Legislature to provide revenue" for state operations, and to decide how the expenses will be met.

Wright made the statements in oral arguments before Lancaster District Judge Dale E. Fahrbruch, in a hearing on an NSSBA lawsuit which challenged placement of LB772 on the Nov. 5 general election ballot.

Suit 'Urgent'

Judge Fahrbruch, noting the "urgency" of the suit in an apparent reference to the six weeks remaining before the election, allowed attorneys until Friday to file answer briefs.

NSSBA President Leonard Lawrence of Bellevue is the principal plaintiff in the suit, and Nebraska Secretary of State Allen Beermann, the defendant.

Wright and Terry Schaaf, arguing for the Nebraska attorney general, agreed before the hearing Monday to a joint stipulation that the case should be argued on its legal merits.

Dropped were NSSBA contentions that signatures were invalid on petitions to put LB772 to a vote and that a temporary restraining order should be issued to withhold the measure from the ballot.

Veto Passed Over

The bill, passed over a gubernatorial veto by the 1974 Unicameral, will shift to the state half the costs of operating the public schools. State aid distribution to local schools, now at $55 million annually, will be increased to more than $155 million by 1976-77.

Wright told Judge Fahrbruch the "main question" in the suit is whether the bill is a revenue measure. He submitted that "LB772 is an appropriations act" and "not subject to the reserve referendum power" of the electorate.

Under the Constitution, no appropriation measure is subject to a referendum. Wright said the questions raised are "ones of law and of constitutional interpretation."

Revenue Set Aside

Supporting his argument, Wright said LB772 designates and sets aside revenue from the state sales and income taxes in a separate fund to support public schools.

Secondly, Wright said, if LB772 is construed as a revenue measure, it "does indeed constitute an appropriation for expense," excluding capital outlay for new construction, to apply to ordinary operations of state government.

The final question, and the most difficult to argue because of few legal precedents, is whether common schools and school districts are a part of state government and are state institutions, Wright said.

"Education is a matter of state-wide concern" and not strictly local, because the state Constitution reserves control of districts to the State Board of Education, he said.

In addition to the constitutional charge to the state to provide free education, Wright said the Enabling Act of 1864 places on the state "the burden to establish and maintain schools."

Because "the state has a prominent interest in public education," Wright said, "free public schools are a part of state government and a state institution."

Vital Services Threatened

To submit the revenue powers of the Legislature to initiative and referendum will result in "crippling if not the destruction of vital state services;" in this case, the schools, he said.

'Not Appropriations Measure'

Flanked by Secretary of State Beermann and Chappell Sen. Ramey Whitney, a leader in the petition drive opposing LB772, Schaaf told Fahrbruch that the bill "is not an appropriations measure." Schaaf cited Nebraska Supreme Court opinions that certain laws allocating specific funds are not considered revenue measures.

Implementation of LB772 is left to the State Board of Equalization, he said, and it "does not impose a tax."

Schaaf disputed Wright's third contention, saying schools are "not part of state government and not state institutions." Schaaf said schools are "local in nature."

The right of referendum cannot be limited and is outside the court's jurisdiction, Schaaf said.

Schaaf told reporters after the hearing he is certain no matter the outcome in Lancaster District Court, the suit will be appealed to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Omahan Arraigned In Shotgun Murder

Plattsmouth (AP) — Mark Powers, 20, of Omaha, was arraigned in charges of second-degree murder Monday afternoon in Cass County Court and bond was set at $5,000.

Powers requested the appointment of an attorney and the appointment will be made by District Court.

The charges stem from the Saturday night shooting death of James Weers of Raymond.

Investigators said Weers, a brakeman for the Burlington Northern Railroad, was sitting in the caboose of a moving freight train, when he was hit by a shotgun blast.

The incident occurred at a crossing at Cullom west of here, officers saying the shot was apparently fired from a vehicle waiting at a crossing for the train to pass.

Authorities questioned a second person in the case, but that man has been released.

The charges, filed by Cass County Atty. James F. Begley, allege that Powers fired the shotgun from a county road.

The shot hit the lookout window on the caboose where Weers was working, according to Begley.

Begley said several shotgun pellets entered Weers' heart, and that Weers' died a few minutes after being hit.

Powers was being held in the Cass County Jail.

Police said the collision threw the woman about 80 feet. She was dead at the scene.

Mrs. Flores is survived by a son, Rubin, of Lincoln, a sister, Mrs. R. Z. Castillow, of Corpus Christi, Tex., two nieces, and nephew and three grandchildren.

Public Asked To Help Curb Polluters

By JOEL THORSON
 Outstate Nebraska Bureau
 Omaha — State Department of Environmental Control (DEC) water, pollution permit chief Dennis Lessig asked for help from the general public here Monday in monitoring compliance with water quality regulations.

Public vigilance can help the department control illegal discharges such as the Lincoln fuel spill which recently killed thousands of fish in Salt Creek, Lessig said.

Lessig was a speaker at a workshop on citizen participation in implementation of clean water laws. The workshop was organized by a coalition of local organizations with a grant from the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Monitoring Half Job
 Explaining the DEC's new role in administering the pollution permit system, Lessig said issuing permits is only half the job. The other half is monitoring discharges to make sure polluters are satisfying conditions outlined in their permits and meeting deadlines for cleaning up discharges.

The permit section's "moderate-sized staff" has a "pretty good handle on every stream in the state," Lessig said. But it's impossible for the department to know everything that goes on, he added, citing the fuel spill as an example.

"We're not asking for a qualitative analysis" of what goes into streams, Lessig said. But he urged private citizens to notify the DEC when they see suspicious discharges into waterways.

The public also has an important part in determining whether a permit should be granted, he said. Each permit requested is put on public notice for 30 days, Lessig said, and if public comment indicates adequate cause, a public hearing can be called.

No Bounty Paid
 Unlike the 1899 law which preceded them, the 1972 Water Pollution Control Amendments contain no provision for a bounty to be paid to citizens giving evidence leading to conviction of illegal polluters. "You can't make a living doing this," interjected workshop participant George Grube, "but you can save your life."

Pollution permits are not licenses to pollute, Lessig emphasized. Rather, they are sets of conditions imposed on a polluter's emissions while he works toward meeting deadlines cleaning them up.

Permittees must apply "best practicable technology" in cleaning up discharges by July 1, 1977, and "best available technology" by July 1, 1983.

The goal of total elimination of polluting discharges by 1985 may prove impractical and might have to be amended, Lessig said.

Careless Driving Count Dismissed

Grand Island (AP) — Hall County Judge Edward Dixon dismissed a careless driving charge against Dennis Bonsack Monday morning, declaring the careless driving statute as passed by the 1973 Legislature unconstitutional.

Bonsack was charged with careless driving and speeding in a complaint filed July 30. On Sept. 9, defense atty. William Von Seggrn filed a motion with the court to dismiss the complaint saying the statute was unconstitutional and not defined with sufficient clarity to apply a standard of guilt. The motion was argued on Sept. 16 by the defense and state and the judge gave both sides until Sept. 20 to file briefs in the case.

The defense claimed a 1966 Nebraska Supreme Court decision had declared a previous careless driving statute unconstitutional, because it was not clear. The high court opinion said this was not so with the careless driving statute which made no reference to the words "careless" or "negligent."

The statute adopted by the 1973 legislature reads, in part, "any person who operates a vehicle in a manner so as to endanger or be likely to endanger any person or property shall be guilty of careless driving."

Under the law, violation is a misdemeanor and if found guilty the defendant may be fined from $25 to $100 and can be sentenced to up to 30 days in jail.

The misdemeanor offense also costs four points under Nebraska's drivers license point system.

Judge Dixon ruled the law did not define the crime in measurable standards by which to ascertain guilt and sustained the defense motion to dismiss the action. He said all further cases filed under the careless driving statute would be dismissed until such time as his ruling is overturned by the district court. Dixon did not dismiss the speeding charge.

Hall County Atty. Sam Grimmer said that as a result of the ruling he would continue to file this type of case under the state's reckless driving statutes. He said that law was more explicit and the charge is very similar.

Grimmer said he didn't know if he would file and appeal action with district court.

Material Shortages Predicted

Grand Island (AP) — The United States has not seen the end of shortages and the situation could develop into a critical crisis, John Kyl, assistant secretary of the interior for congressional and legislative affairs, said here this weekend.

In Grand Island to speak at a $25-a-plate Republican fundraising dinner, Kyl said during a news conference that "the United States, within five years, is going to have a material shortage that's going to form a crisis that will make the energy crisis look like a Sunday school picnic."

Kyl said severe shortages of metals, timber and agricultural products can be expected.

He said there is no way the United States can be self-sufficient in energy by 1980. "We can make ourselves self-sufficient to the point that we cannot be blackmailed by any kind of international cartel, but probably not by 1980," he said.

The former Iowa congressman said he thinks politics in Washington "is a whole new ballgame now."

"I think the good feeling between Mr. Ford and Congress still exists and essentially at the same level it did before Nixon's pardon. I don't believe that the vote last week on the government pay raise was, as some news writers noted, a great setback for the President," Kyl said.

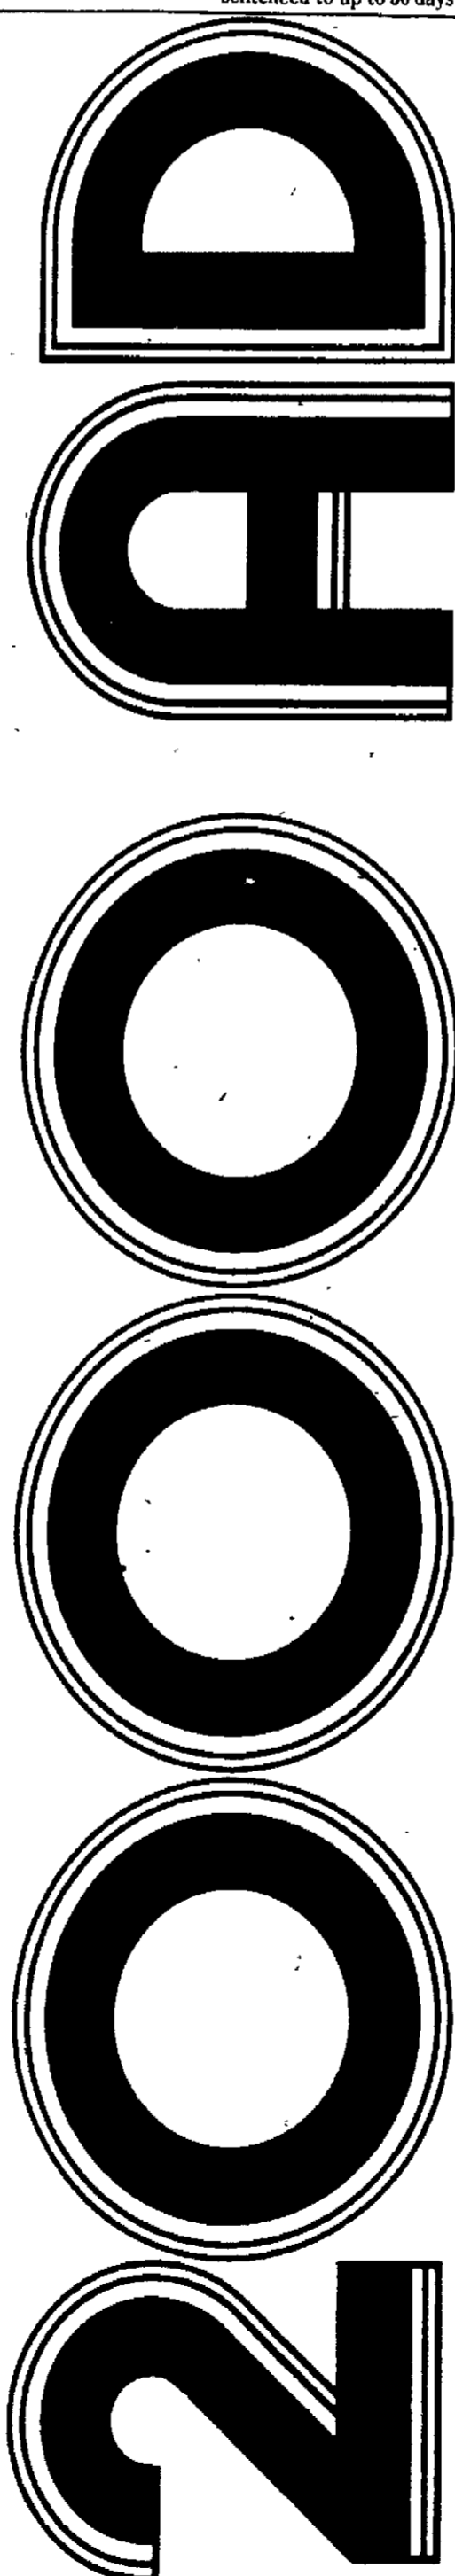

"The President wants the executive branch to work with the Congress rather than to have an adversary arrangement. It is my belief that the kind of situation we had in this whole business we sum up in the word 'Watergate' was bound to happen to some president of one of the two parties sometime very shortly for a whole lot of different reasons."

Kyl said he thinks there is a lesson to be learned from past political problems.

"The lesson is that we must never again let any organization, whether it be the president's campaign organization or any other organization, ever get away from the control of the party — become bigger than the party."

In the 1972 presidential campaign, Kyl said, the Committee to Reelect the President got bigger than the national Republican organization.

What will homes use for energy in the year 2000 AD?

Natural gas and electricity.

You shouldn't be surprised. But the current energy picture is so muddled, you probably don't know what's what any more.

So here's what: People will be using both natural gas and electricity for years to come.

In this century, natural gas will play an important role in making the nation's energy go farther. And that is because gas is more efficient than electricity for the big jobs around the house. It's the natural fuel. It takes no other forms of energy to produce gas as it does to produce electricity. Also, gas loses very little of its "power" on the way to your home while electricity loses two-thirds of its potential in the processes of generation and transmission.

In the next century, natural gas reserves will be supplemented by gas made from coal in a process called gassification.

And electricity will be generated more by coal and nuclear power. (It is estimated that nuclear plants will furnish about one-fourth of all electricity by 2000.)

Conserving all forms of energy will be an American way of life for an indefinite period of time.

Cengas wants you to know that we are committed to serving your needs now and in the future.

Work-At-Home Schemes Are Often Con Games, Gimmicks To Bilk You

By NANCY HICKS
Star Women's Editor

Several years ago, Mrs. Lillian Sorensen of Gering, responded to a newspaper advertisement describing the lucrative job of addressing envelopes at home.

The idea sounded good — earning extra money without having to leave the home, so she mailed in her $2 to pay for the list of addresses.

For her $2 she received a list of companies which might be willing to pay for addressing services — she had to contact them herself — and a request for more money.

By this time Mrs. Sorensen realized that this working at home was going to cost rather than pay her. She checked off the $2 to experience and abandoned the idea.

Mrs. Sorensen was taken by a work-at-home scheme, an old but still thriving con game, which offers the chance to make money at home — usually for addressing envelopes, setting up a newspaper clipping service, starting a home mail-order business or making some kind of handicraft.

They Sound Inviting

Though they sound inviting — no babysitting costs, no car expenses, no special educational requirements and promises of $100 a week or more in earnings — they are often nothing more than a company gimmick to bilk the customer, according to Janet Wilson, extension consumer specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Many of these companies, some of which change names as often as the wind in Nebraska changes direction, provide neither guaranteed employment nor guaranteed income.

What they do provide for a price, according to the Council of Better Business Bureaus, is information — sometimes useless information, sometimes information which can be obtained free from a local library or the federal government.

Work-at-home schemes have one thing in common — they require you to buy something before you can begin work.

Here's How It Works

Here's how a typical work-at-home scheme operates:

An ad appears in a newspaper or magazine. "Address envelopes at home in your spare time. No typing, no selling, no canvassing. We furnish everything. Earn $40 to $60 weekly. For more information, send $1 and a self-addressed stamped envelope to..."

What the hopeful at-home worker gets for his $1 is a letter explaining the offer and a chance to purchase, for another $5 or $10, unstamped postcards which offer some product or service — often name plates, baby shoe bronzing or cosmetics.

The home worker mails the postcards to persons of his choice, and, if any of the cards are filled in with an order, he receives a commission.

But according to the council of Better Business Bureaus, this is the likely result of answering such an ad:

$1 for information
+$5 for 250 postcards
$6 paid by you to promoter
+$15 for stamps for postcards
$21 total money you
— $2 your commission on two orders
$19 TOTAL LOSS TO YOU.

Earn 45¢ a Week

In a postal fraud case, the hearing examiner found that the average amount that could be earned by home workers responding to such an ad would be approximately 45 cents a week.

But work-at-home schemes are appealing, particularly to those people who need money and can't work outside the home — shut-ins, elderly on Social Security, homemakers, handicapped.

The Lincoln Better Business Bureau gets a minimum of 500 calls each year on work-at-home schemes, according to Lois Tefft, manager. "Many people are now calling before they get involved, calling to check out the company," said Ms. Tefft.

Most of the advertisements for work-at-home schemes come through the mail or in magazines. "The local papers have done an excellent job of screening out these types of ads," Ms. Tefft said.

Such ads are seldom published in the Star, according to Verne (Bud) Callahan, Journal-Star classified advertising manager, who said that an average of 300 to 400 work-at-home ads are rejected each year.

Ads Are Screened

The ads are carefully screened and the company's legitimacy may be checked, said Callahan. He estimates that the newspaper annually turns away tens of thousands of dollars in write-in scheme advertising.

On his desk Friday was an ad from a New York firm offering housewives $125 a week for "possible mailing and addressing work."

"Why would a New York firm pay Nebraska women $100 a week to lick envelopes and stick them shut when they can use a postal meter? It's just a little bit hokey," he said, noting that the companies are often just selling lists of other companies which may (or may not) use part-time addressing help.

The Lincoln Better Business Bureau file of reports on companies gives examples of some of the more common work-at-home schemes in operation over the past year:

Typical Schemes

The James Bliss Co. of Levittown, Penn., now under injunction, combined a work-at-home scheme with pyramid recruiting.

For $1, an application and a self-addressed stamped envelope the company sent a letter inviting the home worker to send another $3 for 40 neatly printed copies of their application. These applications could then be sent to business firms which might offer part-time addressing work. For from $3 to $10 the home worker could also get letters which he would then send out and recruit others interested in a work-at-home deal.

Another company offered $100 a week to home workers, but the materials, including circulars, labels and envelopes, cost $91 and the postage $80.

Some companies sell catalogues which home workers mail out. Another offers employment in addressing cards, making baby shoes or aprons. What the person receives for his $2 are patterns which can be purchased for less at most pattern stores, the Bureau report points out.

Other companies sell sewing or knitting kits, instructions on raising small animals, manuals on "Concrete Posts," "American Woodworking." And one Canadian company promises $2,000 for doing "unspecified work through the mail," according to the reports.

The most recent addition to the local file is a New York company with the ultimate in pitches. For $10, a person can get a 20-page pamphlet which explains how to start your own work-at-home scheme... how to con others and still operate within the law.

STAR PHOTO

WORK-AT-HOME . . . schemes are often aimed at the homemaker with young children.

Are there any legitimate work-at-home schemes?

Few Are Legitimate

"Very few," said Ms. Tefft, whose office often sorts out the bad from the worse and cautions individuals to be wary of any company which "requires money before telling you how the plan operates."

"There's usually a hooker some place," warned Ms. Tefft, though many companies do operate within the limits of the law.

There are legitimate companies, "few and far between," said Callahan. The legitimate ones are usually local companies which use home workers for survey mailings. And they usually pay by the hour or on a piecemeal basis, he said.

Tips On Schemes

The Better Business Bureau and Miss Wilson of UNL extension offer several tips for avoiding the schemes.

Be on guard when the promoter:

- promises huge profits and big part-time earnings.
- never offers regular salaried employment.
- uses personal testimonials, but never identifies the person so you can check with them.
- requires money for instructions or merchandise before telling you how the plan operates.

—assures you of guaranteed markets and a huge demand for your handwork.

—tells you that no experience is necessary.

Always check with your local Better Business Bureau before investing in work-at-home schemes, said Ms. Tefft.

And if you want sound advice on starting a home business, the council of Better Business Bureaus suggests writing to the U.S. Department of Commerce, Washington, D.C. for Bibliography No. 1 "Handicrafts and Home Businesses."

In addition, ideas, suggestions and procedures relating to home business are often found in material available at the local library.

It's Time To Divide Peony Plants

Fall is the time to lift and divide old peony plants that may have decreased in vigor and are not producing the quantity of flowers desired.

Use a spade or fork to "pry" the plant loose from the soil. If you wish to propagate a large number of peonies from one old plant, consider washing the soil from the roots with a hose. This method allows you to see where the natural divisions of the plant crown are located.

Carefully cut the plant apart. Avoid breaking and loosening many of the thick fleshy roots. Each division should contain three to five eyes. This size division can be planted in your landscape. Small divisions (one to three eyes, with small roots) should be planted in your garden for one or two seasons before using in a permanent location. Peonies need well-drained soil. They grow best in slightly raised beds that provide good drainage. Plant where they will receive full sun. Shade reduces plant vigor and bloom. Plant your peonies with the uppermost eye not more than two inches below the ground surface. Deep planting will delay or even prevent flowering. Water well

Cordelan Production Expected To Double

The production of Cordelan, a biconstituent fiber of 50% Vinal and 50% Vinyon, is expected to double this year. The fiber is produced in Japan by Kohjin International Corporation.

Of the 20 million pounds now produced yearly, about half is consumed in the United States. Of that amount 60% will go into sleepwear and 40% in home furnishings. The fiber has high flame resistance.

after planting to settle the soil around the roots. Peonies do not send out new roots in the fall.

Mulching may not be necessary every winter, but for the first year, peonies will often benefit from a protective mulch of two to four inches of straw. Remove tops at ground level from all peonies. This practice reduces disease problems the following year.

Good Protein Value

Since cheese is made from concentrated milk (10 pounds of milk = 1 pound of cheese), it is an excellent source of protein as well as calcium. Ounce for ounce, cheese has the same protein value as meat, poultry, fish or eggs. One and one-half ounces of Cheddar cheese contain about the same calcium as one cup of milk.

Kill Bacteria Quickly

Living On Game To Save $

Nebraska's avid hunters have already taken to the fields in search of cottontail and squirrel and soon will be toting their guns to stalk other wild game such as quail, pheasant, duck, goose, the elusive turkey, antelope and deer, as each respective season opens.

And with the high prices of meat, wild game is more readily welcomed and used in day-to-day menus.

However, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), there are a few dangers — "one of the most often overlooked of these is the myriad of bacteria that abound in nature."

"Bacteria cause a meat spoilage problem in the field and a food safety hazard in the kitchen that could lead to food poisoning," APHIS reports.

Food poisoning most commonly contracted from wild game is salmonellosis, caused by salmonellae bacteria. It is extremely discomforting but seldom fatal. Salmonellosis usually strikes 12 to 36 hours after eating contaminated food, lasts two to seven days and resembles the flu in its symptoms — headache, vomiting, cramps, nausea, fever and diarrhea — APHIS adds.

There are, however, several ways to minimize bacteria infection.

First and foremost, the hunter should be selective in the game he bags and takes home to his family.

"If your quarry is stumbling or staggering, making an abnormal amount of noise, appears partially or completely blind or is unusually aggressive, it may well have rabies or some other disease," APHIS points out.

Also, do not kill it unless it attacks you, the service emphasizes, but instead mark the location and report it to the nearest wildlife control officer as soon as possible.

The same rule applies to any injured animal, because the meat will not be good for food.

In addition, never eat game you didn't kill yourself, especially if you are not sure that it was killed quickly and cleanly.

Once you have bagged your quarry, it should be cleaned and chilled as quickly as possible, because warm, freshly killed game is an ideal place for salmonellae and other bacteria responsible for food poisoning and spoilage to grow. Chilling the meat stops bacteria growth.

When preparing the meat for eating, APHIS advises that the cook take precautions in the care and handling of the wild game.

Be sure your kitchen, hands, cutting board, knife and other utensils are clean, APHIS warns. Also wash hands and kitchenware again in between handling raw and cooked meat to avoid cross contamination.

After you have thoroughly cleaned your game, treat it just as you would any meat or poultry you buy from the supermarket — wrap meat loosely for later use and store it quickly in the refrigerator. For storage longer than one or two days, wrap it securely in air-tight freezer bags or foils and store it immediately in the freezer (below 0° F.).

Always cook the meat thoroughly right after thawing, APHIS continues.

Remember that the chilling and freezing methods you used to store the meat stopped the growth of harmful bacteria temporarily. Therefore, a thorough exposure to heat (155° F) is required to kill additional bacteria.

Also, serve the meat as soon as it is cooked and do not leave cooked meat out at room temperature for more than two hours. All stuffing should be removed and stored in a separate container before refrigeration.

According to the National Rifle Association, delicious wild game dishes are the best when cleaned and stored properly, and prepared with simple recipes.

The following are dishes suggested by the Association.

QUAIL CASSEROLE

8 to 12 quail
salt
flour
1/3 c. butter or margarine
1/2 lb. fresh mushrooms or 1 (4 oz.) can mushrooms chopped fresh parsley or parsley flakes
2 c. dry white wine

Split birds down the back. Salt and dust lightly in flour. Sauté in skillet until browned on both sides. Remove birds from skillet and place them in a casserole with lid. Pour enough wine into casserole to half-cover the birds. Cover and place in 350° F. oven for one hour.

Doves and quarters of pheasant may also be prepared this way. Allow only 45 minutes in oven for doves and 1 1/4 hours for pheasant.

BAKED PHEASANT IN FOIL

1 pheasant
melted butter or margarine

Spice Parisienne (optional)

1/2 orange

1/2 c. dry white wine

Brush entire surface of bird with melted butter. Sprinkle cavity and surface with salt. Sprinkle very small amount of Spice Parisienne on surface of pheasant. Stuff 1/2 orange into cavity. Place bird on heavy duty aluminum foil. Bring edges together and seal tightly. Place in shallow roasting pan and bake at 425° F. for 1 1/4 hours. Open foil and allow pheasant to brown for another 1/4 hour. Remove pheasant and foil from pan and add 1/2 cup dry white wine to drippings and heat to boiling. Cut pheasant into quarters and serve with the clear wine gravy.

QUICK-ROASTED WILD GOOSE

Place a young, tender wild goose on rack in a shallow pan and roast in a 400°-425° F. oven. Baste with butter and white or red wine. Roast for 35-45 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

QUICK-ROASTED WIND DUCK

Place 1/2 orange inside the cavity of each duck. Place the ducks on a rack in a shallow pan and roast in a 450°-475° F. oven. Baste ducks well with melted butter and red or white wine or with melted butter and orange juice. Roast for 20-30 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

RABBIT WITH DARK RAISIN GRAVY

1 to 2 rabbits cut in quarters
1/2 c. vinegar
2 t. salt
1 T. minced onion flakes or 1 small onion chopped
4 whole cloves
2 bay leaves
1/2 t. allspice (optional)
1/2 c. dark raisins
1/4 c. brown sugar

Place rabbit pieces in deep pot and cover with cool water. Add 1/4 cup of vinegar to water and bring to a boil. Let boil for 5 minutes. Throw this water away. Again, cover rabbit with cool water and add 1/4 cup vinegar, 2 teaspoons salt, onion, cloves, bay leaves and allspice. Cook until almost tender and then add raisins and brown sugar. Continue cooking until rabbit is tender and done. Remove rabbit from pot and thicken liquid with a paste of flour and water. Replace rabbit in thickened gravy and heat just before serving.

VENISON, MOOSE OR ELK ROASTS BAKED IN FOIL

3 to 4 lb. roast
1/2 package of dry onion soup
Place roast on piece of heavy duty aluminum foil. Sprinkle 1/2 package of dry onion soup over meat. Bring edges of foil together and seal tightly. Place in shallow roasting pan and bake at 425° f. for 2 to 2 1/2 hours. There will be ample juice collected inside foil which can be thickened for gravy.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a man I'll call Bob. I love him very much. I also love my little two-year-old daughter, Diane. Diane adores Bob and calls him "Daddy." That's my problem. Bob gets very upset when Diane calls him Daddy, and has asked her not to call him that.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

I was playing in a pair championship with one of my favorite partners, who will have to be nameless. Pitted against us, on this occasion, were the legendary Two Little Old Ladies.

We wound up in three notrump and the L.O.L. on the left of my illustrious partner led the king of clubs.

My partner ducked and won the club continuation with the ace. When he tried a heart finesse the queen lost to the king and the L.O.L. on his left cashed the Q-J of clubs to bring her side to four tricks, declarer having discarded a heart and a spade from dummy.

Now the L.O.L. made an astounding play. She led the queen of spades! My unfortunate partner - having seen the L.O.L. on his left show up with the K-Q-J of clubs and king of hearts - assumed that the ace of spades was on his right.

Since he could not imagine West's failing to take the setting trick if she had the ace of spades, he played low from dummy.

But the L.O.L. now triumphantly produced the ace of spades and we finished down two. I was watching my partner as the spade ace was played, and it would be hard to describe the expression of utter frustration and futility that permeated his countenance.

Moreover, when he realized he could probably have made the hand by playing the king of spades, he began to shake his head from side to side and, in fact, the last time I saw him his head was still going to and fro.

Booklet Gives Job Rights For Women

WASHINGTON - "A Working Woman's Guide to Her Job Rights," a new Women's Bureau publication, tells a woman what she should know about her employment rights and the laws that protect her once she is on the job or in retirement.

The new guide also describes government services available to aid women in finding a job or in receiving job training.

In addition to the names and addresses of federal agencies able to provide further information or assistance, the guide lists state labor offices and human rights commissions.

Single copies of the 32-page leaflet are available from the Women's Bureau, Employment Standards Administration, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210. Copies are for sale at 60 cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

I desperately need the advice my mother can't give me. She died when I was six. Thank you.

DIANE'S MAMA
DEAR MAMA: Bob's reluctance to be called "Daddy" could signal his unwillingness to accept Diane. If he plans to marry you, surely he should regard your daughter as his own. If he doesn't, she'll be cheated and so will you.

Perhaps he suspects that you've coached Diane in this "Daddy" business to pressure him into an early marriage. (Did you?)

In any case, he's edgy about something and is taking it out on the child. Go slowly.

DEAR ABBY: Hurrah for Mr. X who walked out on a dinner party because he didn't want to compete with a blaring TV set. How often I have wished for that much nerve. If one is invited to a "TV party," fine - that gives him an opportunity to send regrets.

Here's how I handled that situation with some success: I continued to converse with my host and hostess, but I kept lowering my voice until they could hardly hear what I was saying. They finally got the idea and turned off the set.

PAT W., BROWNWOOD, TEX.

DEAR PAT: Great idea. Next time, try just moving your lips. That might send them to an ear doctor.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please tell me the proper way to congratulate a bride and groom following the wedding? The bride is my granddaughter.

And what do you say to the groom's parents in the receiving line?

GRANDMA
DEAR GRANDMA: Wish the bride much joy and happiness. (Never congratulate a bride. That would be like commending her on having snared a man.)

Highly intelligent women, says, Monfred F. DeMartino, are sexier than women of average intelligence.

He has completed a book, "Sex and the Intelligent Woman", based on eight-page questionnaires filled out by 327 women members of Mensa, an international society for people with genius-level IQs.

The findings, he says, suggest that it's time to abandon Dorothy Parker's infamous line about glasses and passes.

"A more correct statement," DeMartino said in an interview, "will be 'Men should make passes at girls who wear glasses.' Our findings reveal that not only are highly intelligent women as sexy as other women but in many ways they are more so."

"I hope this will help to change the negative stereotype that intelligent women aren't interested in sex and are less responsive than other women. I hope women, in sexual relationships, won't feel they have to hide the fact they are intelligent."

Most of the women anonymously answering DeMartino's questionnaire were Americans, but Mensa has 18,000 members in 60 countries, and returns came in also from Canada, England, Hong Kong, Italy, the Netherlands, New Guinea and Switzerland. Ages ranged from 16 to 61. The sample included single, married, divorced, separated and widowed women.

They also took personality tests that measured self-esteem and security.

De Martino found that his subjects have high self-esteem but lower than average feelings of security.

The lack of security may be due to the intelligent woman's feeling of discomfort in a society where she still is considered an oddity, he said.

He found more happiness in marriages where neither the male nor female dominated the other.

But DeMartino feels the most important finding reported in his book is the intelligent woman's sexuality.

Of all the women in the study, 71% are not virgins as single persons, or were not virgins when they married.

DeMartino found the intelligent woman is most active sexually between the ages of 20 and 29, that many enjoy sexual fantasies, and that many feel males make the mistake of neglecting sexual foreplay and move too quickly and roughly.

Show Dominated By Out-Of-Staters

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Omaha — The Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show is proving a bit tough on Nebraska 4-H winners as youngsters from other states are picking off many of the top awards.

4-H members from Minnesota literally hogged the hog show and most of the dairy awards were won by out-state youngsters.

The biggest award of all is still up for grabs on Wednesday when the grand champion steer will be selected. Nebraska has kept the grand champion ribbon within the state for the past five years.

Crossbred Expected
Most observers expect the winning steer to be a crossbred which will be selected Tuesday in the crossbred competition. The winner of the cross bred show will meet the champions of the Hereford, Angus and Shorthorn shows that were held here Monday.

Crossbred cattle have been consistent winners of the grand champion honors in recent years; however, a Hereford did pick off the top prize in 1971.

In Monday's competition the Hereford champion was exhibited by Bruce Helms, 18, of Holbrook. Helms had not been in the Ak-Sar-Ben winners' circle before, although he did win the 1974 Nebraska State Fair FFA Beef Show.

Reserve Hereford honors went to 14-year-old Chris Maier of Eagle Grove, Iowa, who was also the Iowa State Fair grand champion exhibitor.

The Angus steer champion was shown by Alan Settles, 14, of Scribner, and the reserve Angus steer, by 15-year-old Brad Staley of Hampton, Iowa.

Best Angus Heifer
Jennifer Uhrig, of

Hemingford, exhibited the only purple ribbon Angus heifer in the show. There were no Hereford heifers or Shorthorn heifers deemed good enough by the judges to qualify for the purple ribbon honors.

Apparently Miss Uhrig will be competing against only crossbred heifers for the best beef heifer award Wednesday.

The Shorthorn steer show produced only two purple ribbons, with 12-year-old Jene Kasperbauer of Manning, Iowa, taking first place and 15-year-old Billy Hengstler of Creighton picking up second place.

It was the first year Kasperbauer has shown at a major livestock show. Hengstler had exhibited at the Denver Livestock Show last year where he placed among the 12 top showmen.

There are 12 classes of crossbred steers and one class of performance steers to be exhibited on Tuesday. The grand champion steer and heifer will be selected on Wednesday to be followed by the annual livestock auction.

The Ak-Sar-Ben show will then concentrate on 4-H horses on Thursday and Friday.

Kearney Girl, 18, Show 4-H Queen

Omaha (AP) — Christine Markus, 18, Kearney, Monday was named Nebraska 4-H Queen for the 47th annual Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Markus.

Miss Markus, a freshman at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been in 4-H 11 years.

Independent College Unit Will Try New Approach

"We've done all that we can do, and now we're going to work with somebody else," Nebraska Wesleyan University President Vance Rogers said Monday.

His reference was to unsuccessful efforts by the Nebraska Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, of which Wesleyan is a member, to gain state financial assistance for independent college students.

The association decided Monday to work with other postsecondary institutions to support legislation for state aid to "enable Nebraska students to attend the educational institution of their choice", public or private.

The association had challenged the validity of a law allowing private school students to get up to $500 a year in state assistance, to close the gap in higher tuition normally charged at private schools.

The 1971 law was passed by the Legislature on the understanding it would be tested in the courts at the association's expense. The Nebraska Supreme Court refused earlier this month to reconsider its decision that the law is unconstitutional.

"We feel we have fulfilled our commitment," Rogers said, and the association alone is "not going to do anything more."

According to the resolution, the association passed Monday, its members will "cooperate and work with the Nebraska Association of Colleges and Universities and all other institutions devoted to postsecondary education, for the purpose of supporting legislation, within constitutional limitations, providing financial assistance which will enable Nebraska students to attend the educational institution of their choice."

Rogers said the association has no immediate plans for any specific legislation on the subject.

Motorcycle Dealers See New Bike Demonstrated

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Plattsmouth — Some 30 motorcycle dealers from all over Nebraska were in attendance here Monday as three-time European observed trials motorcycle champion Don Smith demonstrated a new trials motorcycle he helped design.

Kawasaki regional distributor, Joe Masek of Gering, said the new Kawasaki KT-250 will not be built at Kawasaki's new Lincoln plant the first year, but may be in the future.

A motorcycle sport which is highly popular in Europe, observed trials place a premium on form, skill and balance rather than speed.

A rider must steer a course among tightly spaced obstacles at very low speeds. Points are charged against the rider for mistakes such as stalling the motor, touching a foot to the ground or falling off.

The observed trial cycle must be lightweight, have strong pull at low engine speed and accelerate well from closed throttle to a respectable top speed. It must be narrow for tight places and have its weight toward the rear, have high foot pegs, a short wheelbase, high ground clearance and special tires.

All three major Japanese cycle manufacturers offer a specialized trials bike. Smith has been working for Kawasaki for three years designing the KT-250 for observed trials competition, Masek said.

Like motocross, observed trials became a big time, big money sport in Europe before moving to the U.S. Masek said some drivers have earnings in six figures for performing year round in observed trials competition.

The sport has begun to grow in this country. About 12,000 people in Colorado belong to trials clubs, Masek said.

Attending the event were David Ascher and Clark Worthington, members of the year-old Omaha-based Midwest Trials Assn.

The demonstration for Kawasaki dealers is the first stage in Kawasaki's promotion of observed trials and the Kawasaki KT-250 in Nebraska.

The acceptance of an updated Lincoln-Lancaster County Comprehensive Regional Plan may be difficult if the many considerations and points of view evidenced at a panel discussion Monday night are not reconciled.

The League of Women Voters sponsored a land use meeting, featuring a panel of seven experts whose specialties or professions ranged from state senator to farm owner to real-estate developer. Fifty people were present for the meeting.

Mrs. Viola Boesinger, co-owner of a farm-feed operation, championed rural interests and advocated a hard line approach.

County Doing Poorly
"The distress signals are coming on loud and clear. We feel Lancaster County has been doing a very poor job of land use," she said.

She deplored that "houses are coming in new developments right in the middle of a section" of farm land.

She said the hunger in the world does not allow agricultural land to be taken out of production in such a haphazard manner with no thought to the needs of the future.

Stability Needed
State Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly and Planning Commission member said the only way agricultural land can be protected is "to develop a land use plan that has stability to it."

He went on to say zoning "must be in the hands of a local elected body," and he agreed the City Council and the county commissioners must approve the Comprehensive Plan that is the guideline for zoning laws.

James Hacker, Planning Commission member and homebuilder, expressed a more denier attitude about land use than Mrs. Boesinger. "It is hard to dictate to people where they must live," he said.

"We have to look at it from several viewpoints. We know of people who do not want to live within 25 feet of their neighbor and want to live on an acreage. We really cannot dictate to these people," he said.

Impact On Owners
He said there is an additional problem in that "if you designate land for different uses and one piece is worth a lot more than the adjacent piece of land you must consider the impact upon the owners." Land designated for a shopping center is obviously going to be worth much more than agricultural land, he said.

"Land that is well suited for agriculture is also well suited for roads, airports, houses and just about anything else you can think of," said Dr. Paul Gessman, professor of agricultural economics and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

But, Mrs. Boesinger said, "We have to face up to the food shortage. You don't grow a thing under a slab of concrete."

"It is not the amount of land, it is the use to which it is put," said Pace Woods Jr., Lincoln realtor and developer.

Controlled Growth
He explained, "We're after some sort of controlled growth. We must look at all land use and all person use as well."

He advocated "some sort of adaptive type of growth." The needs of citizens "can change dramatically, and we can only make the best guesses possible as to what they will need in the year 2000," Woods said.

"I am not willing to say that we are to be faced with absolutes."

Planning Alters Pattern
Gessman said planning changes the pattern of opportunity, but it does not prohibit people from doing what they want.

Robert Hans, Goals and Policies Committee chairman said, "The Comprehensive Plan is very general, but this is going to be incorporated into a zoning map, and this is very rigid."

Lincoln and Lancaster County are embarked upon an updating of the 1961 Comprehensive Regional Plan. A team of consultants from the Barton-Aschman firm from Chicago is doing most of the preliminary work.

ITT Fails To Divest

Washington (UPI) — The Justice Department disclosed Monday it is investigating the failure of International Telephone and Telegraph Co. to divest all of the holdings it agreed to sell under a 1971 antitrust settlement.

ITT had agreed to sell its interest in Avis, Inc., Levitt & Sons, Inc., and Hamilton Life Insurance Co. under a settlement which allowed the firm to keep the profitable Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

The Justice Department advised Federal District Court in Hartford, Conn., which is overseeing the divestiture, that ITT will not complete its sale of Levitt and Avis stock by the deadline Tuesday and that an investigation has been launched into the reason for the delay.

Taft Chairman's Daughter Kidnaped

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The 4-year-old daughter of the board chairman of Taft Broadcasting Corporation was kidnaped Monday from the front yard of her home. Police said a $2,000 ransom was mentioned in one of two phone calls to the family.

Allison Mechern, daughter of Charles S. Mechern Jr., was playing in the yard when she was taken, police said. Witnesses said a young man driving a white automobile took the child from the prosperous Mount Lookout residential area of Cincinnati. The car was later found abandoned near a package store.

Police were asking nearby businessmen if they had seen a white male with bushy hair. Police Sgt. Homer Brown said the family received two calls after the kidnaping, which took place at about 3 p.m. CDT. One of the calls mentioned a figure of $2,000 ransom, he said.

In the initial call, Mechern was told the location of the abandoned car. A ransom note was contained in the pocket of a blue jacket and a shoe belonging to the girl was recovered from the car, police said.

Mechern heads Taft Broadcasting Corporation, with six television stations nationally, two large amusement parks, two Hollywood production firms and five radio stations.

Resisters Planning To Protest Amnesty

TORONTO, Ontario (AP) — Plans for worldwide protest demonstrations were announced here Monday by United States war resisters intent on a universal boycott of President Gerald Ford's conditional amnesty program.

Irma Zigas, coordinator of the U.S. National Council for Universal Unconditional Amnesty (NCUUA), told a news conference demonstrations were being planned across the United States and at embassies and consulates in many countries during the NCUUA's "Week of Concern," Sept. 29 to Oct. 6.

Renewed condemnation of the Ford "earned re-entry" amnesty offer and a campaign for a total boycott against it were announced as the major resolutions of the three-day conference of U.S. military deserters and draft resisters living in Canada, England, Sweden, France and the United States.

Mrs. Zigas and other spokesmen agreed that the message of the conference is directed more to the "hundreds of thousands" of war resisters now living underground in the United States than to the relatively small number in Canada and elsewhere.

Henry Schwartzschild, a spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), said the most urgent message of the conference is to those resisters who are thinking of "surfacing" in the United States and accepting the President's offer.

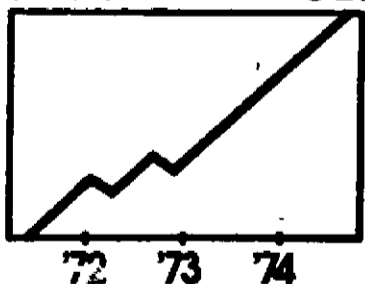

"They would be foolish to do so because they don't realize the stigma that would be attached to a 'clemency' discharge," he said. "A 'clemency' discharge would mark a resister for life."

Mrs. Zigas said there are "at least 200,000 persons in the United States who should be made aware of the fraudulent nature" of the offer.

College Freshman Was Sixth Grader Two Years Ago

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two years ago, Colin Camerer was in the sixth grade. Now, he's a 14-year-old Johns Hopkins University freshman, enrolled in the school's program for math and science prodigies. "What's an eighth grade teacher supposed to do with a student capable of learning advanced college math?" asked Dr. Julian Stanley, one of the originators of the plan. Stanley said the program began in 1969 when a 13-year-old computer student at Hopkins' night school wound up counseling his classmates — who were in their mid-20s.

Psychologists at the university, including Stanley, were so intrigued that they set up a pilot program for such mathematically gifted students.

Two years later, Stanley founded the Maryland Mathematics Talent Search, the Hopkins-sponsored program to help gifted children accelerate their education as quickly as possible.

The computer whiz whose activities helped spark the program is now an 18-year-old Cornell University student on the verge of finishing his doctoral work, Stanley said.

The search for prodigies begins each winter when Stanley's three-man staff asks all public and private school systems in Maryland to submit names of seventh and eighth graders who rank in the upper

How to keep the heat on and use 56% less energy* in the bargain.

Get a new gas furnace.

The new gas furnaces offer more features than ever before. But even more important, when you heat your home with gas you're actually conserving energy. This is because gas is a natural fuel and there is no need to use other energy sources to produce it. Electricity, on the other hand, consumes other fuels before it can be produced.

Therefore, it requires more energy to do the same jobs that gas does for less.

While electricity is best for lighting and small appliances, gas is a natural for cooking, for heating your home, for drying your clothes, and for heating your water. So use each for the things it does best. See the versatile, economical, efficient gas appliances at your gas appliance dealer or heating contractor. Or at your gas company today.

*Based on extrapolations of data from "Energy Utilization Efficiency of Major Home Appliances," a special technical report prepared by the Research and Engineering Division of the American Gas Association, July, 1973.

Farmer Robbed While Riding Tractor in Field
Ames, Iowa (UPI) — Story County Authorities were searching for two men who robbed a central Iowa farmer on his tractor in the middle of his field Monday afternoon.
 Officers said Kenneth Kingsbury was robbed by two men, one of whom was carrying a gun, of a billfold and a watch while he was sitting on his tractor in the middle of his farm field three miles south of here.
 Authorities said the two men pulled the wires on the tractor to prevent Kingsbury from reporting the crime that was eventually called in by a neighbor.
 The amount of money stolen was not available.

Indians, Brewers Split

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two-run homers by Charlie Spikes and Lerone Lee led the Cleveland Indians to a 7-4 decision over the Milwaukee Brewers for a split of their two-night doubleheader Monday.

The Brewers scored four runs in the ninth inning, two on Tim Johnson's tie-breaking double, and beat the Indians 6-2 in the first game.

The Indians took a 2-0 lead in the second game on Spikes' homer, which followed Frank Duffy's single. The Brewers scored three runs in the second inning, with Pedro Garcia's RBI single capping the rally.

The Indians tied the score in the fourth on Dave Duncan's run-scoring single, then Lee provided the game-winning hit with his homer in the sixth.

After Johnson's double off the left field fence broke a 2-2 tie in the ninth inning of the first game, Jack Lind and Don Money followed with run-scoring doubles for the Brewers.

Ron Hansen's pinch-hit home run with one out in the eighth inning tied the game at 2-2 for Milwaukee.

Singles by Charlie Spikes and John Ellis produced two Cleveland runs in the sixth. John Lowenstein opened the rally with a single off Jim Colborn, Oscar Gamble walked, Spikes singled to center to score Lowenstein and tie the score and then Ellis blooped a run-scoring hit for a 2-1 Indian lead.

The Brewers scored in their half of the sixth on a double-steal. Dick Bosman gave up a two-out single to Money, who went to third on Ken Berry's single and scored on the front end of the double-steal.

Russians Gain Tie

VANCOUVER (AP) — Alexander Malnev and Alexander Gusev scored goals late in the third period Monday night and rallied the Russian national team to a 5-5 tie with Team Canada in the fourth game of their exhibition hockey series.

The Soviet comeback wiped out the 5-2 lead the Canadians had built behind Bobby Hull's three-goal first-period and left the teams tied at one victory and two ties each entering the Russian phase of the series.

The teams now travel to Russia for the final four games.

The Soviets had taken a 2-1 lead after 5:50 of play when Hull began his goal spree. Valeri Vasiliev opened the scoring with a slap shot from the point past Canadian goaltender Gerry Cheevers, and after Gordie Howe tied the game, Boris Mikhailov blasted a short shot past Cheevers.

Then Hull started Team Canada to four straight goals within 5:04. Hull counted at 12:45 and 15:11. Frank Mahovlich scored his first goal of the series from short range at 17:10 and Hull added his sixth goal in the four games 39 seconds later to give the Canadians a commanding lead.

First Period—1, Russia, Vasiliev 2 (Kharlamov), 3 34, 2, Canada, G. Celtics Suspend Chaney BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Celtics Monday placed guard Don Chaney on suspension for not reporting to training camp.

"Don is in violation of his contract by not reporting to training camp," said General Manager Red Auerbach. "We have no choice but to place him on suspension."

Larry Fleisher, Chaney's New York lawyer, countered in a telephone interview that Chaney is not under contract to Boston and therefore cannot be suspended. "Mr. Chaney is not in violation of his contract," said Fleisher. "He has no contract; his contract expired last season."

Chaney is in the option year of a three-year contract he signed in 1971. He was unavailable for comment.

"If Mr. Auerbach is talking about the option, that doesn't require Don to play for the Celtics this season," said Fleisher, attorney for the NBA Players Association. "At very worst it doesn't allow him to play for another team this year."

Barber Nears $1 Million Mark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Miller Barber's victory in the $150,000 Ohio Kings Open over the weekend, and the $30,000 winner's check, failed to push him into the top 10 money winners on the PGA tour, but it brought his season total to $92,141 and inched him closer to the $1 million mark for his career.

Barber surpassed the $800,000 mark with his first tour win of 1974.

Johnny Miller is far and away the top man for the year, with $316,383, while Jack Nicklaus, who tied for seventh in the Kings event, is second with $235,763.

Fading Red Sox Face Elimination

BOSTON (AP) — One month ago, the Boston Red Sox were riding high, holding a seven-game lead in the American League East. A runaway loomed and everyone was talking pennant.

Now, after losing 21 of their last 29 starts, the Red Sox are faced with elimination with just 10 games remaining.

The Baltimore Orioles dealt Boston hopes another sharp blow Sunday, whipping the Red Sox 7-2 before 26,495 disillusioned fans at Fenway Park.

The loss dropped the Red Sox five games behind the New York Yankees. Baltimore is in second place, one game back.

"We're going to have to perform a miracle now," Manager Darrell Johnson said after hopes of winning at least two out of three from Baltimore were dashed.

The Red Sox had a break in the schedule Monday in which they could further consider their plight. On Tuesday, they begin their last scheduled trip of the season, playing the Yankees in a two-night doubleheader and in a single game Wednesday night.

Luis Tiant and Rogelio Moret go in the doubleheader and the Yankees will counter with unbeaten Larry Gura and Rudy May.

Then they go to Detroit for four games before returning home to wind up this suddenly dismal season with three games against Cleveland.

After dropping a 2-1 decision to the Orioles Friday night, the Red Sox pulled a minor miracle Saturday by defeating the Orioles 6-5 in 10 innings in a 6½-hour marathon interrupted three times by rain.

Trailing 5-1, the Red Sox tied the game with four runs in the ninth and won it in the 10th.

But there was no lucky charm

Outdoor Report

PANHANDLE
Hunters averaged about a bird per man in Morrill, Garden, Keith, Arthur, and McPherson counties on Saturday. By Sunday, both hunting pressure and success had dropped off considerably. Reports from the Crescent Lake National Wildlife Refuge told of only fair grouse hunting success there.

SOUTHWEST
Grouse hunters passing through the North Platte Check station reported good success. Archery-deer hunters, who also entered their season on Saturday, appeared to do well in the Platte Valley in Lincoln and Dawson counties. In Lexington, eight archers checked in with deer over the weekend, and five reported success at the North Platte station. Fishermen also had some success over the weekend, especially at Johnson Lake. There, 12-inch white bass were taking artificial lures.

SAND HILLS
Success varied considerably throughout the region. Game check stations reported hunters coming through with limits on Saturday, while others reported poor success. On Sunday, pressure and success both dropped noticeably. Range conditions are extremely dry in Loup, Rocky and western Holt counties, and hunters found landowners reluctant to grant permission because of the risk of prairie fires.

SOUTHEAST
In southeast Nebraska, most hunters' attention was focused on the squirrel season, or on the archery deer opener. In both cases, extreme heavy foliage hampered efforts. Several archers reported seeing deer in range but protected by heavy screens of brush, and squirrel hunters complained that the bushytails were hard to spot among the treetops, which still carry most of their leaves.

UN-L Women Win Opener

The UN-L field hockey team won its opener against Graceland 2-1 Sunday afternoon at the Women's PE Building fields.

Returning veterans from last year's squad are forwards Mary Amatrup, Mary Annolt, Mary Franssen, Julie Dewing, and Sue Hansen. Beth Piller is the only returning backfield player.

The next Nebraska game is Thursday at Concordia College in Seward at 5 p.m. on Sunday. Baltimore southpaw Mike Cuellar was too tough in the clutch, posting his 21st victory against 10 defeats. The Red Sox had eight hits and drew eight walks, but left 11 runners on base.

"We hit Cuellar harder than we have all season, but we still couldn't score any runs," Johnson said. "We hit five or six line drives, good shots, right at somebody. Maybe we'll do some scoring in New York. We had better."

Johnson isn't ready to surrender yet, but he realizes the Red Sox face a most difficult task.

"We're just going to have to win three in a row now in New York," he said. "Two out of three might keep us alive, but we need to win all three. We also have to hope that Baltimore loses a couple of games."

Devorce Receives Award

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — If the University of Arkansas never sees Carl Devorce again, it'll be too soon.

Devorce wrecked the Razorbacks a year ago and, sure enough, he did it again Saturday night. Switched from defensive tackle to nose guard this season, the 6-1, 253-pound senior made 10 tackles in Oklahoma State's 26-7 romp at Little Rock.

"He just played super," Coach Jim Stanley said Monday. "He's a little more fluid, a little quicker than Barry Price was. And he's humble — he works his tail off. He's the kind of guy every coach likes to coach."

After last year's game against Arkansas, Devorce was named Big Eight Defensive Player of the Week. His performance against the Razorbacks Saturday earned him that honor again.

Arkansas crossed midfield only once—and that was in the fourth quarter—and gained only 122 yards total offense, an average gain of 1.9 yards per play.

Oklahoma State's victory was especially impressive in light of Arkansas' opening 22-7 gallop over Southern California.

Other nominees were Iowa State linebacker Brad Storm, Kansas State linebacker Carl Pennington, Colorado linebacker Jeff Geiser, Kansas nose guard Mike Lemon, Missouri safety Tony Gillick and Nebraska linebacker Tom Ruid.

The Kentucky Colonels' Dan Issel gets ready to dunk the ball. Issel and his teammates will face the Kansas City-Omaha Kings Sunday night at Pershing Auditorium in a pre-season exhibition game.

OSU, KU Lack Scoring

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Oklahoma State and Kansas have something in common this football season—both need a formula for scoring touchdowns.

Coaches Jim Stanley of the Cowboys and Don Fambrough of Kansas indicated this is their most pressing problem Monday during the weekly telephone briefing session of the Big Eight Conference.

Stanley looked back on Oklahoma State's 26-7 victory over 10th-ranked Arkansas Saturday night. The Cowboys got only one late touchdown after Abby Daigle kicked four field goals and missed three others.

"It bothered us we had to go for the field goal so often," said Stanley. "It was our own mistakes that we didn't score. We needed more killer instinct against Arkansas."

"The only part of our offense I'm displeased with is our inability to score," said Fambrough, whose Jayhawks lost 17-3 to 17th-ranked Tennessee Saturday night. "We move the ball well. We haven't had the poise to get the ball across. We make little mistakes that stop our offense."

Of Saturday's game at Baylor, Stanley said:

"They've played two games on the road...right down to the wire. They do a great job of throwing the football."

Stanley said running back Leonard Thompson has a broken bone in his right arm above the wrist and will be out of action three weeks.

Fambrough said Kansas' punting and placekicking both need improvement. He added he does not know "how to figure Florida State. I know they're a much better team than a year ago."

Kansas plays Florida State at home Saturday.

Three coaches were worked about their quarterbacks. Coach Earle Bruce of Iowa State said Buddy Hardeman had knee surgery Monday and will be lost for the rest of the season. Hardeman was injured on the first play from scrimmage in last week's 31-28 loss to Washington.

Wayne Stanley will replace Hardeman for the Cyclones.

Quarterback Steve Grogan is a question mark for Kansas State. Grogan, who saw little action in a 17-0 win over Wichita State, has a pinched nerve in his neck.

"I think he'll be able to play Saturday," Wildcat Coach Vince Gibson said, "but I don't know how much."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer confirmed that Dewey Selmon has been shifted to noseguard for Saturday's home game against Utah State.

Bill Ziegler of Missouri will be out of the lineup Saturday when the Tigers are hosts to Arizona State. His tailback post will be filled by freshman Joe Stewart.

Coach Al Onofrio of Missouri described Arizona State as "probably the fastest football team in the United States. They are awfully alert on defense."

Colorado goes back to the offensive drawing board this week, reported Buff Coach Bill Mallory, whose team has been routed twice, including last week's 31-0 thrashing by sixth-ranked Michigan.

Mallory starts work for Saturday's test against Wisconsin and said the Badgers are "another real toughie for the third week in a row."

Red Cross Asks Funds For Victims

The Lancaster County Chapter of the American Red Cross "will accept relief funds for relief work in behalf of the victims of Hurricane Fifi," assistant manager, Bill Wyckoff announced Monday.

Wyckoff said, "Checks should be marked for the Central American Hurricane Relief Fund," and will be forwarded through Red Cross channels to the disaster area.

Fifi ripped across five Central American countries Friday, leaving 5,000 dead and another 5,000 missing in Honduras alone.

Wyckoff said if contributors want their money to go specifically to Honduras, checks should be marked for the Honduras Relief Fund.

He made the announcement after numerous people called his office, 1701 E., wanting to assist the disaster relief effort with financial contributions.

Administration Told . . .

Effect Of Cutting Budget Unhealthy

By LEE M. COHN

(c) Washington Star-News

New York — Federal budget cuts would make only a small dent in inflation and would deepen the economy's slump, so more direct government action is needed to curb wage and price increases, the Ford administration was advised Monday.

One novel plan for direct action was proposed—tax reductions to compensate workers for excessive rises in the cost of living, if they submit wage controls.

Conflicting advice on the budget, controls and other issues also was offered at a "mini-summit" meeting of leading economists here. Following through on their general discussion at a preliminary meeting in Washington early this month, they presented papers and debated the issue in an attempt to formulate recommendations.

Last of Preliminaries

The meeting of economists here and a meeting of state and local government officials in Washington Monday concluded a series of preliminary sessions preparing for a summit conference on the economy in the capital Friday and Saturday. The administration and Congress are jointly sponsoring the elaborate enterprise.

While economists hoped to reach a consensus on some issue, their prepared papers and comments in advance of the meeting indicated wide disagreements in many areas.

Otto Eckstein of Harvard University and David L. Grove of International Business Machines Corp. presented papers challenging the administration's strategy of relying

Appraisal Business Said Almost Recessionproof

The real estate appraisal business is almost recession-proof.

That's the way John E. Green, an appraiser and course instructor for the national Society of Real Estate Appraisers, views his profession.

He is Lincoln teaching a 10-day introductory course on appraising real property at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

When the money market gets tight, Green says lenders and corporate investors rely heavily on appraisers to make sure the value is there before they loan money.

When both money and property are available, it's the buyers who become more cautious and count on the services of appraisers.

However, he said, there are

Hike Opposed In Usury Rate

Lincoln legislative candidate Jim Kubert Monday said he opposes increasing the 9% state usury rate at this time.

The Legislature needs to "take a realistic look at all of the charges levied upon borrowers by the lending institutions," the 26th District candidate said.

"The true effect of all the hidden charges is to increase the real interest rate well in excess of the stated 9% usury rate," Kubert said.

Talmadge Urges Re-Examination

Washington (UPI)—Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., called on the Senate to re-examine the 1973 farm law.

"The farmers of this nation must be rewarded adequately for their efforts in behalf of this nation and the world," Talmadge said in a speech prepared for Senate delivery Monday.

"We cannot expect them to produce at a loss."

mainly on cutting federal deficit spending to fight inflation. They said spending reductions would depress output further and raise unemployment without significantly decreasing the current rate of inflation.

Predictions Disputed
William Fellner of the President's Council of Economic Advisers (CEA) disputed the predictions that spending cuts of the size being contemplated — $5 billion to $10 billion—would slow the economy's pace.

Reduced federal borrowing would ease credit for the private economy, even if the Federal Reserve did not step up expansion of the money supply, he said.

With credit easier, business investment would take up the slack from government retrenchment and economic activity would be maintained, he said.

But Arthur M. Okun of the Brookings Institution, said the impact of tight budget and credit policies on production and employment would be so severe that further direct measures are needed to fight inflation.

"Both business and labor are on a treadmill which they can't get off on their own initiative," said the former CEA chairman.

Workers, he continued, try to protect themselves from the rising cost of living by demanding big wage increases, and business in self-defense must try to pass on cost increases by raising prices.

The key to breaking this cycle, he said, is to guarantee workers that they will not lose purchasing power if wage increases are held to moderate levels.

Coca-Cola was the most-active Big Board issue, sliding 6 to 63, including a 239,900-share parcel at the closing price.

Other glamor issues under pressure were Burroughs, off 1 1/2 at 77 1/2; Digital Equipment, down 1 1/4 at 73 1/2; IBM, 2 1/4 at 169 1/4; Johnson & Johnson, 2 1/4 at 83 1/2; and Xerox 6 1/2 at 73 1/2.

Blue-chip issues listed in the Dow Industrial average also were hit hard, with Exxon, General Electric, International Paper, Alcoa, and Sears, Roebuck dropping at least a point each.

Overseas Shipbuilding climbed 2 1/2 to 12 1/2, and Seatrail Lines added 1 1/2 to 2 1/2. Analysts said the companies got a lift from news that pending legislation would require initially that 20 percent of all foreign oil imports to be moved by U.S. flagships.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was ahead 0.32 to 67.00. Roblin Industries topped Amex actives, off 3 1/2 at 1 1/2.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market rose 0.24 to 59.66.

Early Rally Try Fails In Market

New York (AP) — Disappointment that no major bank has yet lowered its prime lending rate ended an early morning rally try and turned stock prices mixed Monday.

With glamors and blue chips getting the worst of it, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 7.04 to 663.72.

Many key interest rates have been taking a welcome drop recently in response to signs that the Federal Reserve is relaxing its credit reins somewhat.

In light of that, traders sent the Dow up about 4 points in the opening hour on the hope the First National Bank of Chicago might cut its prime lending rate below the prevailing 12 percent level. The Chicago bank, however, kept its prime unchanged, and the stock market languished for the rest of the session.

Gainers, which had earlier led losers by some 3 to 1, held only a narrow 7-to-6 lead at the close on the New York Stock Exchange. The NYSE composite index fell 0.29 to 34.5.

Turnover shrank to 12.13 million shares, compared with 16.25 million changing hands Friday.

"I don't think the market has any dynamism," analyst Walter Burns of Lynch, Jones & Ryan said. "If we were starting a bull market, you'd know it."

Even with recent declines in many short-term interest rates, Wall Street is still laboring under uncertainty over what the Ford administration plans to do about double-digit inflation. Some brokers said investors were withholding commitments until the results of this weekend's economic summit are known.

Coca-Cola was the most-active Big Board issue, sliding 6 to 63, including a 239,900-share parcel at the closing price.

Charles Wolff Jr., warden of the Nebraska Penal Complex, said Monday he has taken a job as the No. 2 man in the Virginia Corrections Division.

Wolff said he is making the move because it promises an opportunity to make some "real contributions" to an "ambitious" penal program there. Wolff ends his Nebraska job Oct. 7.

Sources close to Wolff said the decision to leave after 18 years in the Nebraska correctional system was partially based on salary considerations and penal reform differences with Gov. J. James Exon.

Cengas Charges To Be Increased

Until the Federal Power Commission acts, a rate increase application by Northern Natural Gas Co. will result in higher natural gas rates in 37 Cengas-served communities in Nebraska, including Lincoln.

C. L. Wilcox, Cengas Lincoln division manager, said the 7% monthly increase will be $1.30 for an average residential heating customer in Nebraska. Wilcox explained that Northern Natural filed an application for higher rates effective May 27. However, the FPC suspended the effective date of the increase to Oct. 27, the maximum suspension period under the Natural Gas Act, he added.

Because the FPC cannot make a final disposition of the application by Oct. 27, Wilcox said,

$1.99 Steak Once Whinnied

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Butcher Joe Giallo sells hamburger for 57 cents a pound and an inch-thick filet mignon for $1.99. It's horse meat, but he insists, "You can't really tell the difference until you look at the price."

"More people are eating horse meat than ever before," said Giallo, who waits on 150 customers a day. "There's a lot of people looking for a cheaper substitute for beef."

Business is so good that Giallo opened a second butcher shop last week. He even envisions a string of horse meat market franchises around the country.

Deal To Be Last

Tokyo (AP) — Kenji Osano, the Japanese financier who bought three Sheraton Hotels in Hawaii last week, declared "This deal will be our last one overseas."

MoPac is, first of all, a railroad. We work hard at being the best around. To us, that means more than just bringing you the goods you need as well as we can.

It means being the best when it comes to our resources, our environment, the Earth and all its inhabitants.

MoPac is number one at fuel efficiency. Better than any other major railroad. And railroads, in general, are the most efficient mode of distribution going. Compared with trucks, for example, rails carried nearly twice as many ton-miles of freight last year ... using only half as much fuel, and producing one-sixth as much pollution.

Of course, we know there's more to be accomplished. We're working on it. Spending in excess of one billion dollars in the last ten years alone on new equipment and to keep existing equipment in peak condition.

You see, MoPac is much more than a railroad. We're a progressive total distribution system. Serving communities like yours.

per year under Exon, will be paid $24,500 in Virginia.

The differences between Wolff and Exon reportedly came to a head when Wolff appeared before the Legislature's Judiciary Committee and spelled out what improvements, particularly new buildings at the Men's Reformatory, are needed.

For that, Wolff drew Exon's wrath, a source said, because the governor was cool to brick-and-mortar plans being formulated by the Judiciary Committee.

Consequently, a source said, when former Corrections Director Victor Walker resigned earlier this year, Wolff was not Exon's choice for the vacancy.

Northern Natural will be permitted to increase its rates under provisions of the Natural Gas Act subject to reduction and refund pending final disposition of the application.

Gas rate ordinances allow Cengas to pass along to its customers adjustments for changes in the wholesale cost of gas. Cengas notified city officials of the increase in a letter dated Sept. 23.

One hundred and one towns in eastern Nebraska are served through utilities under Northern Natural and all are expected to expect gas rate hikes in the near future, according to a Northern Natural spokesman.

In addition to Cengas, utilities served by Northern Natural include People's Natural Gas and Metropolitan Utilities, both of Omaha, Nebraska Natural Gas Co. of Fremont, Iowa Public Service of Dakota City, Iowa Electric Light and Power which serves Rosalie, and municipal systems at Lyons, Pender, Ponca and Stromsburg.

Cengas communities supplied through Northern Natural include: Adams, Arlington, Beatrice, Bee, Beemer, Blair, Clatonia, Columbus, Cortland, Craig, Crete, David City, DeWitt, Dorchester, Friend, Garrison, Greenwood, Hallam, Lincoln, Mead, Milford, Mynard, Nickerson, Oakland, Osceola, Plattsmouth, Plymouth, Rising City, Seward, Shelby, Staplehurst, Tekamah, Ulysses, Wahoo, Waverly, West Point and Wilber.

No rate hikes are planned at the present time for Cengas communities in Nebraska supplied by the Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Co. pipeline, a Kansas-Nebraska official said Monday. Kansas-Nebraska serves 154 Nebraska towns on the retail level and 57 at wholesale.

Because of that, and his desire to keep corrections out of politics, a source said, Wolff decided he had "no future" in Nebraska and put out job feelers.

Wolff thus becomes the second high-level corrections administrator to leave in recent months. Scott Miller, associate warden in charge of the Men's Reformatory, has resigned to take a federal post.

When asked about the post of corrections director, Wolff said the fact he was not chosen is "not really" the reason he is leaving.

During the interview, Wolff said he preferred to stress the positive aspects both of his leaving and the Nebraska penal system. He said Virginia has "one of the best programs in the country."

He said he would rather not talk about any frustrations he may have experienced in pushing for penal reform.

Wolff's resignation was contained in a letter sent Monday to Corrections Director Joseph Vitek. Both Vitek and Exon said they were surprised and disappointed by Wolff's resignation.

In the letter, Wolff said, "It is my fervent hope that the correctional plan becomes a reality in 1975."

'Significant Contributions'
Vitek called him "a long and faithful employee" who has "made significant contributions to Nebraska corrections."

Exon said, "We're sorry to lose him and we wish him well in the pursuit of his career in penology."

Lincoln Sen. Roland Luedtke, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said he, too, was surprised by Wolff's resignation. He speculated that the state's indecisiveness in penal reform may have contributed to his decision.

Sen. John DeCamp, a committee member, said Wolff had been "a magician to accomplish what he did."

During his tenure, Wolff expanded furloughs, medical treatment, vocational training and educational and work release for inmates. A recent civil rights study praised Wolff for his "progressive" administration.

When the Board of Equalization meets after the November election, its members might be faced with a $100 million increase in state aid to education which would increase the transfer payments to at least $206 million.

The remainder of the state's budget, about $189 million, is divided roughly into 65% salaries and 35% operating expenses, supplies, etc.

Inflation could cause a big increase in salaries. Exon was asked if the state employees could expect a reduction in buying power because their wage increases would not cover inflation. "I certainly hope not," he said.

To keep the employees up with the cost of living, the state probably will have to come up with a pay hike of 10% or more. The technical community colleges recently suggested a pay increase of 11.8%.

In operations and supplies, the situation does not look much better. The University of Nebraska, which accounts for 34% of the state budget once the transfers have been deducted, asked for an increase of almost 10% for operations.

When salaries are added, that figure could amount to 21% and will probably be at least 14%.

Exon, however, points optimistically to the agencies of state government which he directly controls, saying they are holding the line on budgets.

When the Board of Equalization meets in November, it will have to set tax rates high enough to bring in enough revenue to cover the appropriations the legislature made last January.

Although the expenditure side of the ledger is coming slowly into focus as agencies prepare their budgets, the amount of tax revenues which the state will collect during the coming year remains in doubt.

Exon said the revenue situation will be clearer when the September and October income tax and sales tax receipts are reported.

That should be some time in October.

While inflation increases the cost of state government, it also increases the cost of groceries, and that increases the size of sales tax revenue. And while the drought decreases the incomes of dryland farmers, the resulting shortage of corn will increase the price of that grain and the incomes for irrigation farmers.

Cattle and hog raisers will be paying lower income tax bills because of the low livestock markets, Exon said.

Exon said an excellent wheat crop will tend to offset losses on other crops.

But in the final analysis, Exon said it was safe to assume that the increase in sales and income tax collections this year will be smaller than previous years.

State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters said it was hard to make revenue predictions because the economy has never been in this shape before.

He said inflation would tend to increase collections of sales and income tax, but that drought and unemployment would tend to decrease tax revenue. But he said unemployed people, because of credit cards and unemployment insurance, have been spending more than unemployed people have in the past.

State Sen. Jules Burbach, chairman of the legislature's Revenue Committee, said the drought would have a "very, very critical effect on all Nebraskans whether in or out of agriculture."

Burbach said under current economic conditions, tax collections "certainly won't go up."

He said some salaries which are tied to the cost of living, will increase, and thus cause income tax obligations to rise. He predicted farmers would pay less sales tax because they will not buy as much equipment this year.

Burbach said he did not know how farmers would come out on income tax, noting he could not predict how much of last year's crops they continue to hold.

Burbach said under current economic conditions, tax collections "certainly won't go up."

He said some salaries which are tied to the cost of living, will increase, and thus cause income tax obligations to rise. He predicted farmers would pay less sales tax because they will not buy as much equipment this year.

Burbach said he did not know how farmers would come out on income tax, noting he could not predict how much of last year's crops they continue to hold.

Exon said an excellent wheat crop will tend to offset losses on other crops.

But in the final analysis, Exon said it was safe to assume that the increase in sales and income tax collections this year will be smaller than previous years.

State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters said it was hard to make revenue predictions because the economy has never been in this shape before.

He said inflation would tend to increase collections of sales and income tax, but that drought and unemployment would tend to decrease tax revenue. But he said unemployed people, because of credit cards and unemployment insurance, have been spending more than unemployed people have in the past.

State Sen. Jules Burbach, chairman of the legislature's Revenue Committee, said the drought would have a "very, very critical effect on all Nebraskans whether in or out of agriculture."

Inflation, Drought May Reduce State Finances

By ERIC KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

The worst inflation in decades and damage to the economy caused by drought could cause the state government serious financial problems.

The drought and inflation will be of major concern to the state Board of Equalization when it meets to set tax rates in November, and those concerns will be of even more importance when the legislature begins to consider its budget in January.

Inflation and drought could even affect the next year's tax rates.

Inflation, above 15% on the consumer price index and triple that on the wholesale price index, could push the state's budget millions of dollars higher.

At the same time, drought and early frost could cut revenue flowing into the state treasury. When farmers suffer, the state's economy suffers. Less money is spent, so sales tax collections drop off. When the economy is bad, incomes drop off and income tax collections fall.

In Lincoln, state officials are not sure how severely state programs will be cut, or what, if any, tax increases will result.

"It seems safe to assume we are in for belt tightening across the board," said Gov. J. James Exon.

Exon is asking his agencies to come in with budget requests no higher than last year's levels. But, even with agencies holding the line, it will be tough to keep inflation from pushing the lid off the state budget.

About $106 million of the state's tax funds go to what economists call transfers, which include payments to welfare recipients, aid to cities, aid to schools, etc. Most of that sum is in the form of fixed-dollar obligations not subject to inflation, according to Department of Administrative Services (DAS) budget director John Jacobs. The exception is the $34 million spent on welfare. Welfare recipients could get a cost of living increase from the legislature in January.

When the Board of Equalization meets after the November election, its members might be faced with a $100 million increase in state aid to education which would increase the transfer payments to at least $206 million.

The remainder of the state's budget, about $189 million, is divided roughly into 65% salaries and 35% operating expenses, supplies, etc.

Inflation could cause a big increase in salaries. Exon was asked if the state employees could expect a reduction in buying power because their wage increases would not cover inflation. "I certainly hope not," he said.

To keep the employees up with the cost of living, the state probably will have to come up with a pay hike of 10% or more. The technical community colleges recently suggested a pay increase of 11.8%.

In operations and supplies, the situation does not look much better. The University of

Dyas' Poll Figures Challenged By GOP

A Republican Party official Monday accused Democratic congressional nominee Hess Dyas' campaign committee of apparently issuing "deliberately misleading polling results."

A Sunday Journal and Star survey, undertaken by SRI Community Response, Inc., showed Republican Congressman

Charles Thone with a 32% lead over Dyas, First District GOP Chairman Monroe Usher of Lincoln noted.

A few days earlier, the Dyas campaign reported that a poll completed for it showed Thone only 17% ahead, Usher said.

"Two reliable surveys of voter opinions done in the same period in representative precincts of the First Congressional District would not be that far apart," he said.

"I am forced to conclude that the Dyas organization is not releasing accurate voter opinion data, but only phony figures for propaganda purposes."

Secretary Weds Heir Apparent To Ford Motors

TEQUESTA, Fla. (AP) — Slim, brunette Cynthia Layne Neskow goes to the altar in this, her home town, Saturday, as the bride of Edsel Bryant Ford II, and heir apparent to the Ford Motor Co. She foresees a quiet marriage.

"We're not the jet-set type," said the 23-year-old secretary. "We enjoy sitting home, watching TV, having people over, cooking in. Occasionally, we like a big party but as far as going out — being seen — that's not for us."

Cynthia said her first date with the 25-year-old son of Ford Motor Chairman Henry Ford II was at an auto show, and added: "What else?"

Food Stamp Study Urged By Whelan

Omaha (AP) — Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, Gerald Whelan of Hastings, said Monday that he favored a study, and possible end to the food stamp program.

Here to speak before a civic organization, Whelan said, "I think we have subverted the use of food stamps. I think the whole thing should be reviewed ... perhaps with a view to abolish food stamps."

Whelan said he favored the reversion to a means of direct relief for those who need it. "I think those going to college should not be eligible for food stamps," Whelan said, but added, "Now don't get the idea that I am against people of extremely modest means going to college. If there is a need there, we should meet that need another way, maybe through direct taxation by the State of Nebraska or the federal government ... but not food stamps."

Whelan said the food stamp program was set up with a two-pronged objective: to help those who need help, and to get rid of agricultural surpluses.

However, Whelan noted that there are no more agricultural surpluses.

Nebraska Railroads Win 4% Freight Rate Increase

By The Associated Press
The Public Service Commission (PSC) has granted Nebraska's five railroads a 4% intrastate freight rate increase.

The raise will increase intrastate freight revenue for the five rail firms by $415,117 annually, according to James P. Harrity, an officer of the Western Railroad Association.

The increase becomes effective Oct. 21.

The hike is to help cover costs of wage increases in a new contract with railroad employees. The Interstate Commerce Commission previously approved a similar rate hike on interstate freight shipments.

Only Section OK'd
The PSC, however, only granted a section of the four-part rate increase sought by the Nebraska Railroads on intrastate fees.

Parts of the request designed to cover increased fuel costs, equipment rentals and hikes related to depreciation, property taxes, personal injuries and fixed charges or other deductions were denied.

"It would appear the 4% increase is justified," Jim Paine, staff counsel, told the four commissioners present: chairman Bob Marland, members Eric Rasmussen, John Swanson and James Munnely. Commissioner Duane Gay was out of town on PSC business.

None of the commissioners present dissented.

Prior to the meeting, Paine said the 4% increase would be the fourth rate increase for the five Nebraska railroads on intrastate shipments over the past year.

Since August, 1973, the railroads have received a 3% general rate increase, a 2.8% increase to cover higher employee pensions, a 3.3% hike to cover rising fuel costs and the 4% hike granted Monday, Paine said.

'Big Decision'
Pending with the PSC is another request for a general increase that would incorporate the fuel charge amounting to more than 10%. "That 10% will be a big decision," Paine said.

If it is granted on intrastate shipments in the future, it would bring the total hikes for the Nebraska railroads to about 25% since the summer of 1973.

Freight rates play a part in the cost of goods and reflect the inflationary spiral on the economy over the past year.

The five Nebraska railroads are the Union Pacific, the Missouri-Pacific, the Rock Island and Pacific, the Burlington Northern and the Chicago and North Western.

Motel Telephone Ruling Challenged

The State Supreme Court was told Monday that the Nebraska Public Service Commission prevented a motel from using a private phone system in order to protect telephone company revenue.

Ben Franklin Motel, located on Interstate 80 near Papillion, installed its own RCA free telephone system for guests and the system was interconnected with the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The commission barred the motel from using its own system, since there was commercial phone service available. The commission indicated competition from private phone systems could hurt the quality of general phone service.

In a written brief, Enar Viren, the motel's attorney and a former commissioner, said the switch to the private phone system was made to take advantage of long-run tax advantages and to avoid future increased charges from Northwestern Bell.

Viren said the commission has no jurisdiction over the private, interconnect system for two reasons. Since guests were never charged for the telephone service, he said the motel could not be considered a commercial phone service.

Secondly, he said the Federal Communications Commission has pre-empted control over the subject and has warned the states not to interfere.

The commission, he added, has in fact tacitly approved telephone interconnect systems by setting phone company rates for connections with equipment supplied by customers.

For the commission to say now that private telephone systems are illegal is "to create a rather ridiculous situation to say the least," Viren said.

"The Nebraska Commission laudably is trying its best to prevent an erosion of revenues of telephone carriers," he said.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X X

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
